LEAVING NEWTON

The workers of the Newton Welfare House are to give a tea to Mrs. Carrie A. Hull, secretary of the Welfare Bureau at their headquarters at 12 Austin street, Newtonville, on Thursday, September 10. Mrs. Hull is leaving Newton to take a position as County Secretary in New Jersey. She has been with the Welfare Association for the last six years and every one that knows anything about the work of that association realizes the great contribution she has given to social welfare work in Newton. Mrs. Hull came directly after the war time when there was a great deal of work to be done for the returning men and their families. She has, during these six years, handled all the Red Cross Home Service work as well as the Relief Work under the Welfare Bureau. The Welfare Workers of the city regret very much that Mrs. Hull is leaving Newton as it has been a great pleasure and inspiration to work with her and she has been through the past years recognized as a leader in this type of work. Mrs. Hull's new field will be one of responsibility and development. She leaves the city about September 12 to take up her new work in New Jersey the first of October.

The challenger wins two sets out of three, the members change places in the list. Any member may have his name added.

READ FUND PICNIC

Annual Picnic at Burr Playground, Newton, Enjoyed by Seven Hundred Children

About 700 children enjoyed the games, entertainment and refreshments at the annual "Read Fund Picnic" held at Burr Playground last Saturday. On entering the playground each child exchanged an admission ticket for a strip of five tickets good for two ice creams, one tonic, one bar of chocolate, and one roll of candy wafers.

The afternoon was divided into three periods, the first being given over to games and races. This was followed by Community singing, led by Mr. Baldwin, and then came the formal opening of the entertainment when an American flag, supported by over 200 toy balloons, was anchored 50 feet in the air and the Pledge of Allegiance was given by the children, led by Superintendent Hermann.

The professional entertainment consisted of sketches, monologues and blackboard drawings by "The Pierces" and a very funny Mut and Jeff act, including boxing and tumbling by two professionals from "The Players" agency. The third period, devoted to group dancing under the personal direction of Mrs. Hills, was very well received by the audience. The following numbers were given: Folk dancing, (1) Lads and Lassies; (2) On the Bridge of Avignon; (3) Hull's Victory; (4) Lovely Wulka; (5) Esthetic Dance; (6) Competition dance by couples.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S ANCESTORS

Coolidge and Dawes, Partners, 1776

fortifying Bunker Hill, and this com-
 The third, John Coolidge (of Natick) was a Minuteman under Capt. Benjamin Bullard of Sherborn, enlisted immediately on the formation of the Continental Army (April 21), when he is rated as Corporal, and with the same Captain and with Col. Jonathan Brewer in command of his Regiment, was with these Middlesex men at the battle of Bunker Hill. His service continued throughout the war, the first Muster Roll having his name being dated August 1, 1775, showing his enlistment service of three months, nine days, so covering the battle of Bunker Hill. A later company return, dated Prospect Hill October 6, 1775, shows him as a member of the Main Guard there under Col. Loammi Baldwin, dated July 16, 1775. Still later he is given as a Sergeant in Capt. Joshua Fiske's Company, and later yet he is credited with secret service work in Rhode Island.

He was left for dead on the field of Bunker Hill, having been rendered unconscious by a blow from a Britisher's musket, but he proved very much alive and did some service in the war that may have made the British wish their blow had been more efficacious! For as many years as he lived—and that was to the ripe age of eighty-four, as he died in 1836—he fired off the musket he carried that memorable 17th of June, on each June 17th thereafter, and his son (Col. Alexander Coolidge) followed the same romantic practise until presenting the musket to the Historical Collection of Old South Church.

We have in our possession now pieces of State and Continental script carried by him during the years of the Revolution, and it gives quite a thrill of pleasure and awe to handle them, and to read their dates 1775, 1776, 1778-9-30, and realize that these were in his pocket and may have gone through the battles of Lexington, Bunker Hill, White Plains, New York, and on various secret missions to Rhode Island, when he was sent thither on important errands as to supplies and ammunitions!

Another occasion for a thrill is the peculiar fact that of the sixteen Coolidges who went through the Revolution this man—my great-grandfather—is the only one who was present in 1825 at the Lafayette reception and Bunker Hill Corner-stone-laying as a survivor of the battle of Bunker Hill! From him was descended Col. Alexander Coolidge, County Coroner for thirty years, and holder of various town offices in Natick. He was commissioned in the Militia. His son, John Henry Coolidge, was a lawyer, and a writer, known best as an essayist, and for his political writings for the Washington Post and New York Sun, for which he was correspondent for years.

The statement was recently printed in Boston papers, on the death of Louis Arthur Coolidge of Milton—formerly of Natick—that he was descended from this John Coolidge of Bunker Hill, but this is not true. He and his brother William H. Coolidge are descended from John's younger brother Thomas (born 1755), but who was also in the Revolutionary War, in Capt. Joseph Morse's Co., Col. Samuel Bullard's Regiment. He was at Lexington and Bunker Hill, and had further service during the war, but remained a private. Louis Arthur Coolidge is best known as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Roosevelt, as Senator Lodge's private secretary, and as the leading candidate for the Senate on the wet ticket. He had a very winning personality, and all his relatives were fond of him, having against him only his peculiar wet tendency, and we just couldn't understand how such a fine Coolidge ever got "that way"! William H. Coolidge—once a resident of Newton Centre and known here, therefore—is a well known lawyer, but his chief fame lies in his baseball prowess for Harvard College!

Samuel Coolidge, born in 1753, the third Natick brother, enlisted in Capt. Joshua Fisk's Co., Col. Abner Perry's Regiment, and it is claimed was one of the "Indians" in the Boston Tea Party. From him is descended Judge Bruce of Malden, and one has only to read of the fearless and clever sentences imposed by this level-headed man to know that he has inherited some of the snap and determination of his ancestor.

The fourth Natick man—and these all were sons of Captain John Coolidge of Sherborn—was Isaac, born in 1747. He was a private in Capt. Joseph Morse's Co., Col. Samuel Bullard's Regiment, and marched on the Lexington alarm. When the Minute Men were formed into regular companies—just after Lexington—Isaac is rated as a Sergeant in Morse's Co., with Col. John Patterson in charge of the Regiment, and he was at Bunker Hill. From him was descended Dr. John B. Coolidge, of Natick (whose mother, by the way, was Almira Ball of Newton); famed as a dentist, whose discoveries in this science revolutionized dentistry, and brought reflected glory upon Tufts College, his alma mater.

Just as in the Natick branch of the family several sons had to get into the Revolutionary fracas, so the Bolton young men had to be in the thick of things. Josiah, Stephen, and William—probably brothers of the Lancaster John Coolidge, or possibly Josiah was the father of the other three—enlisted as Minute Men and hastened to the Lexington alarm. So that the ancestor of the Vice-President was warning the ancestor of the President—an interesting thing now that they are partners in leading the nation.

A somewhat amusing thing is that Josiah Coolidge's company was held up at Leechmere Point, Cambridge, to guard this approach, at the time of

PILLSBURY-HOWARD

There was a quiet wedding on Thursday, August 27th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Howard of Fuller street, when their daughter, Miss Dorothy Converse Howard became the bride of Mr. Merton Zena Pillsbury of Grantham, N. H.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Spiers of Newtonville, and was attended by the immediate family. A reception followed the ceremony.

Miss Emily Howard of West Newton and Des Moines was the maid of honor and Miss Florence Howard of West Newton and Miss Muriel Howard of Urbana, Ohio, were the bridesmaids. Henry M. Howard, Jr., was the best man.

The bride's dress was of white crepe and she wore her mother's wedding veil.

The maid of honor wore a simple dress of yellow crepe and carried a sheaf bouquet to match.

The bridesmaids were gowned one in green and one in rose crepe and their bouquets were of the same colors. Miss Howard is a graduate of the Newton High School and of Miss Wheelock's kindergarten school of training. After a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Pillsbury will make their home in Grantham, N. H.

THE NEWTON GLASS CO.

The Newton Glass Company which opened its doors to the public last spring in Nonantum Square is fast becoming one of the leading enterprises of the city. It is the only store of its kind in the Newtons and vicinity. The company is gradually extending its service to include Belmont, Watertown, Needham and other nearby towns.

One of the most important of the company's trades is the setting of automobile glass in windshields, windows and doors. This work is done at the store and many patrons come and wait for the work to be done as the prompt and efficient methods employed by the company appeal to the business sense.

Another branch of work done by the Newton Glass Company is picture framing and the demand for this has far exceeded the management's expectations.

The line of framed mirrors carried by the company is equal to the best one can find anywhere. The service in this line includes not only the resilvering, setting, and repairing of leaded glass but also the setting of curved glass in china closets, etc.

The company is also the exclusive Newton agents for the So-Ezy and Standard Plate lines of paints, brushes, and finishes.

The line of bathroom fittings on display and for sale at the store are all of the finest grade to be found.

CITY HALL

The report of the Public Buildings Commissioner for the month of August shows a slight falling off from the figures for July. The August figures show a total of 145 permits valued at $995,805 issued during the month as against 160 permits valued at $1,121,985 during July. This is the first time for several months that the total valuation of permits in one month has dropped below a million dollars. Of the 145 permits issued in August 58 are for single dwellings with a valuation of $672,950 and 11 are for two family houses with a valuation of $127,500. Evidence of the effect of the zoning ordinance is shown in the gradual reduction of the number of permits for two family houses issued in the past few months.

The figures for the past month are, however, still far in advance of the figures for August, 1924. To date the report shows that 1195 permits have been issued as against 961 during the same eight months period of 1924. These permits have a total valuation of $8,790,137 in 1925 and $4,456,452 in 1924.

EDITORIAL

The Federation of New England Bird Clubs and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals are co-operating in a movement to safeguard birds from stray cats by eliminating these animals and disciplining their owners. The campaign is a worthy one and should have the support of every lover of family pets and feathered friends. The homeless cat, abandoned while its owner goes on a vacation, is forced to prey upon the unwary bird for food. This is but animal instinct and only the owner of the animal is to blame. The person who willfully neglects a domestic animal and is not willing to accept the responsibility of taking care of it should not have it. Massachusetts has a statute prescribing penalties up to a year in prison or a fine of $250 or both for failure to give food, shelter or proper care to a domestic animal. Every conviction resulting from the campaign now under way should result in a maximum sentence for every offender.

PARAMOUNT WEEK

The eighth annual Paramount Week is the feature of the motion picture world next week. All theatres have united in a determination to give the public the best film entertainment by booking exclusively Paramount pictures for the week of September 6-13. These pictures are produced by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

More than 3500 weekly and daily newspapers have been chosen almost exclusively to carry the advertising of this event and the sum spent by the Corporation is one of the largest ever paid out by an American corporation to newspapers in a single day.

During the past year Paramount has released many of the most popular pictures ever shown on the silver screen. Among these are such pictures as "The Covered Wagon," "The Ten Commandments," "Manhanded," "Monsieur Beaucaire," "Peter Pan," "Merton of the Movies," "North of 36" and many others.

During the coming year the film fans of the country will be treated to even better things for recently Paramount has signed such notables as Director D. W. Griffith and the two comedian stars, Harold Lloyd and Doug MacLean, both of whom will henceforth release their pictures through the Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation.

Paramount Week, September 6-13 means the end of a season of stellar triumphs and the forecast of a still more successful season to come.

NEWTON CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

An interview with Mr. Vitali Podolsky, Director of the newly opened Newton Conservatory of Music, on 409 Centre street, opp. public library.

Vitali Podolsky was born in Vilna, Russia, the birthplace of Jascha Heifetz. From 1908 to 1912 he studied in the Conservatory of Music in Petrograd, under Leopold Auer, the master violinist of the age, and the greatest living teacher. This fact is in itself a splendid tribute to the talents of Vitali Podolsky, for it is well known that the great master Auer never accepts students unless they possess extraordinary abilities. Mr. Podolsky came to America in 1914. He has enjoyed several phenomenal concert tours during the past few years. He is recognized, particularly throughout the eastern states as one of the finest violinists of the day. His appearance with Miss Martino insures a high-grade organization.

A thorough knowledge of a subject is not enough to make a teacher. There must be, in addition, the ability to impart one's knowledge. And this is not enough either. The cornerstone on which is based the lifework of the real teacher is devotion to an ideal and the willingness to serve. Pupils love the right thing if you give it to them, but it is difficult to find pupils with the proper combination of ability, leisure and desire to prove an inspiration to the teacher. No matter how much a teacher is devoted to an ideal, he must furnish a proper background which will inspire and prove a source of pleasure to his students. For a teacher who believes in his work it is very trying to attempt to teach pupils who have not the will to work. They seem to think they can achieve by simply wishing to. It is not enough. You cannot wish yourself into a great artist. You must work yourself into it. There must be in the pupil, to match an equal amount on the part of the teacher—a willingness to serve and work. I believe in the personal equation for pupils. Each pupil is a distinct entity and must be schooled, trained and developed along the lines of the individual talent. That is what I stand for.

WATERTOWN, MASS.ONE THING AND ANOTHERWritten by
Leverett D. G. BentleyHereafter, should unfortunate circumstances beset us, we shall not say
"I'm dizzy" or "I'm running around in circles," but shall describe our condition at the time more accurately
by saying, "I have that Nonantum Square feeling."

We sometimes wonder why the question is not asked, "Why do they call it Labor Day?" If that they were put up to us we confess that we would have to stop and think before replying. Of course we would want to make as profound an impression as possible in our reply, but admit that it would tax our limited mental resources to frame an answer that would completely and gracefully conceal our ignorance. We know of an editorial writer who prepared with great care a seemingly ponderous editorial on a subject concerning which there was a wide division of popular opinion. He walked over to the desk of an associate and laid the article
before him. "Read that and tell me what you think of it," he said. The other patiently waded through the several typewritten pages and remarked, "It's good English but you seem to have dodged the whole question beautifully." The author reached for the "copy." "Thanks," said he,
"that's exactly what I tried to do."

That would be, we fear, our way of telling what we know of the significance of Labor Day. Of course we could say that organized labor used to hold big street parades on Labor Day.
But these have been discontinued and we are not aware of the reason. We do know that many people, restricted
to a vacation period of two weeks, jockey around to get the fortnight that will give them an additional Monday—
to wit, Labor Day. We know, further, that Summer people seem to have an idea that "the day after Labor Day"
is the day upon which everybody should rush from the mountains or the shore to their Winter homes. We know that Labor Day is popular because it offers a week-end that includes a Monday holiday and what is sweeter to a week-end? We have seen many householders who took advantage of the day to stay at home and sort of tidy up the grounds. We know that the theatres usually select Labor Day for reopening their doors for the season. We know that Summer hotel proprietors reckon on a big slump in business "after Labor Day."
We know that Labor Day has come to mean "get ready to go back to school" for the youngsters. There are other things we know of Labor Day but are dumb, indeed, as to where labor itself,
we use the economic term gets much more out of it than a day off with loss of pay.

Without hesitation we offer, for whatever it may be worth, our hearty endorsement of the movement started by the Federation of the Bird Clubs of New England. We hope that it may accomplish its twofold purpose—care
of neglected cats and the preservation of bird life. The federation has combined forces with the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Naturally the former is more interested in the birds and, as is well known, the other organization is eager to see cats either cared for or their lives mercifully ended. That the homeless stray cat is "the greatest enemy of the birds" cannot be disputed and the federation is sound in this contention. We sympathize with bird lovers and with cat lovers. At least we can see the point of view possessed by each. We could not become enthusiastic over any attempt to exterminate all cats and we do not believe that fair-minded bird-lovers expect or hope for such in the years to come. Apparently they are of the opinion that a cat forced to seek something on which to feed is likely to pounce upon a bird. It distresses us to think that such is a law of nature but there seems to be no grounds for contradiction. This reasoning ment would seem to make it clear that both sides are agreed that cats must exist and birds need protection. How much better to have this understanding than to have an eternal discussion of the question of which is preferable
or more necessary, the cat or the bird.
We see that the State Game Wardens are contributing their efforts to the success of the movement. Of course it cannot be that anybody expects birds to be saved from cats in order
they may offer targets for hunters.
If such were the case we would not add our approval and we doubt not that many other people would share
our sentiments.

We are ready to believe that a well-
fed cat is not likely to pursue birds
and we trust that the movement underway will prove the firmness of that theory. The neglect of cats is an indication of a cruel nature. Altogether too many kittens are brought into homes to amuse children only to have their limbs twisted, their necks stretched and their bodies battered.
Some people seem to believe that a cat can stand no end of mauling, can go without food and survive everything from a kick to a railroad wreck and come up purring. These are the same individuals who, after having fed a cat and given it to understand it has found a comfortable home, will turn the poor beast out in the night to starve and possibly to freeze. Is it any wonder, under such circumstances, that the cat makes a plump bird its prey? We do not intend that this should be a brief for felines, but we think that as Calvin Coolidge, as Governor of Massachusetts, once wrote in a "Be Kind to Dumb Animals" proclamation, "A merciful man is merciful to his beast." This is, as we see it, the doctrine of the square deal and we earnestly believe that no more than a square deal for birds
and cats is sought by this combined movement of the bird clubs and the M. S. P. C. A. Everybody understands the problem and everybody should have a part in its solution. We shall never forget standing on a city street corner one cold night waiting for a trolley car and watching the behavior of a stray cat. We say her trying to dodge through a restaurant door.

Finally she managed to do so.
Straightway she made for the kitchen.
A friendly cook gave her some meat.
The cat made back, out the door and up the alley. We had in the meantime spoken to a policeman. Accompanied by the officer we followed the cat and found that she had been forgetting for a family of kittens curled up in the blackest end of the alley.
Such a cat was worthy of more than abuse and neglect but who could have blamed her if she had found a bird
and killed it?

Collectors of odd things have pretty thoroughly covered the field, judged
by what little we have seen and read in our day. We wonder if anybody has ever thought of collecting doorplates. The present generation has probably given scant thought to doorplates. They are much more interested in number plates. Yet there was a time, and not very far back, when a doorplate was a sign of elegance.
We happened to stroll by an old house
the other day and there saw one of the old-time doorplates, with the owner's name in a fine, flourishing script.
As we recall, script engraving was the kind that went with residences. The name of the head of the house, with an "Mr." prefixed, stood out conspicuously on the center of the right hand door. It established beyond all question or doubt the fact that the bearer
of that name then lived or had lived there. Many families preserved the doorplate long after the head of the house or his good wife had passed beyond. Then there was the larger plate that followed the style of print. Usually these were larger and in nearly every case used by physicians. They could be read at a greater distance
and would in every sense be most imposing. Part of the duties of the housewife and her paid or volunteer helpers was to polish the doorplate.
The nickel-plated surface, like the handle of the door, was never allowed in a well-ordered household to look dingy or dull. That is no doubt one reason why all who saw the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore," never forgot the line in Sir Joseph Porter's song, "I cleaned the windows and I swept the floor and I polished up the handle of the big front door." We assume, in fact we know, that door handles are still polished,
but doorplates are, well, not exactly out of the running, but a reminder of the days when things were somewhat different.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Services in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Newton Highlands will commence next Sunday with a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 A. M. and Morning Prayer and sermon by the Rector at 10:45. The alterations and enlarging of the Parish House begun
in August are nearing completion.
The upper room of the Parish House is being extended and a Rector's study installed. The Church School superintendent, Mr. Alonzo A. Cole, is also having proper equipment and an office for his secretarial work. In the basement a modern and approved Crypt is being built. This room will be used for the increased Church School and other parochial activities.
A large and up to date kitchen with cloak-room and other facilities makes it possible for the parish to continue its religious and social program in a manner hitherto impossible. The parish extends a cordial invitation to the people of Newton Highlands without other Church affiliations to enter our fellowship and to find a Church home among us. The children are especially invited to enroll in the Church School where under splendid conditions and competent teachers they will receive their religious instruction.

TWO RESCUED

The Metropolitan Police at Riverside had one of the busiest days in years last Sunday on the Charles River. More than a dozen tipovers occurred at various points along the river. Patrolman Arthur Caddigan of the Metropolitan Police rescued John Sullivan and Thomas Ryan, both of East Boston near Forest Grove where their canoe had capsized. Both of the young men were nearly exhausted
when the officer reached them in the police boat. After treatment at the station they were able to go home.

The perfect weather and the concert by the 101st Engineers Band at Riverside brought out one of the largest crowds in years and the boat houses reported all their canoes out.

pany commanded by Col. Asa Whitcomb was most disgusted at not being in the midst of affairs. But when Charlestown was burning, they were permitted to go across, and then got into the hottest of the fight. A letter in the Adjutant General's Department at the State House written long ago by one of the survivors of that company,
tells a witty story of beholding a comrade—name ungiven—get a bullet through his coat, and of hearing this man only exclaim humorously: "They're getting mighty careless with their bullets!" Scared? Not this man! And that is why, with our regiments made up of such stock, we won the revolutionary war!

There is something that I often wonder, in pondering upon the coincidence of these three John Coolidges
in the thick of things around Boston
—if in the confusion of names which must have arisen they received one another's letters! And love letters at that! To be sure there were no parcel post in those days, so that no boxes of home made goodies may have become mixed—but what of the letters of Eunice Eames to my great-grandfather, for they were sweethearts then, marrying in 1780, and what of the letters of Hannah Priest who married John in 1779, and what of the letters of Lydia Dawes who had already married her John in 1772? Did any of their missives go astray, and were they opened by the wrong man? I wonder!

I wonder, too, if these three Johns knew one another they probably did

—and liked one another—why, of course!

In the days since then the Coolidge leanings have been shown in every branch, and repeated in every town and city in which they have resided—
law, politics, public office, and writing.
It is sometimes amazing in tracing
the generations in the various cities, towns, even States, to see how in each branch—however far removed in relationship—there is the reversion to the tastes and talents of the first John Coolidge in this country.

There is no need to repeat here the public service of the Coolidge branch of Vermont. It, at least, has had wide circulation of their attainments in each generation, until today there is the culmination of the inheritance of ages in the leadership of the nation
—a building through the years, since the first of the clan set forth cour-ageously and with high ideals to erect
in a new world a structure of truth,
honor, faith, and unflinching stead-fastness. A matter of chance, of personal good fortune? Far from it! It is the law of destiny, working from an upright cause to an equally upright effect!

SERMON BY REV. C. H. WALCOTT

Delivered at The Union Services in the Methodist Church, Newton, August 30th

(Sermon preached at the Union Service in Newton, Sunday, August 30th, by Rev. Clifton H. Walcott, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Winchester, Massachusetts.)

"The Centurion's Greatest Victory"

Luke 7:1-10

In these opening verses of the seventh chapter of Luke we have the story of the healing of the Centurion's sick slave. In his extremity the Cen-turion sent for Jesus who came and made his servant whole. This incident is full of human interest, heartthrobs, and also of spiritual helpfulness.

The Centurion's greatest victory, if we may so characterize this incident,
was therefore a service victory. No doubt he had figured in many military victories, or he would not have held the office which was his at Capernaum.
A centurion was not an officer of high rank in the Roman army, and yet the centurions were called the "backbone"
of the Roman legion, the greatest fighting machine of ancient times.
There were sixty centurions in a legion who fought in the ranks at strategic points. The five centurions mentioned in the New Testament are all men of unusual qualities of character. This one of the seventh chapter of Luke is no exception, but we are not interested in speculations about his military exploits, but in his great service victory which brought healing and health to a sick slave. This is our interest, because we too live in a needy world, in which there are many sick slaves.

The chief problem of the church is not to find new phrases for her creeds,
but new energy for service. "He went about doing good," is a brief but very complete biography of Jesus. The service ideal is it to common, but effective service is more rare. The Centurion found a way to get results and immediate results. This appeals to us, catches our attention, holds our interest. None of us enjoys defeat.
We glory in victory. We press on to discover, if we may, the Centurion's plan of campaign for service victories.

There are four chapters in this story which will engage our attention,
and in order that we may not seem to be fighting under sealed orders, we will outline the plan of advance at the start. The chapter headings will surface to give us our general direction:
first, "The Insufficiency of Caesar";
second, "The Intrinsic Advantage of Character"; third, "The Sufficiency of Christ"; fourth, "The Dominance of the Spiritual."

First of all then was the Centurion's realization of his own helplessness. At this time there were three Roman legions and their auxiliaries in Palestine. Behind them was an army which had conquered the world. Centurion represents not only military strength, but also material wealth, practical organizing power
and all that went with the prestige of the Roman scepter. Nevertheless,
he is brought face to face with a situation in the presence of which he is helpless. There are things which "Caesar-power" cannot do. The Centurion might help capture a city, but what of his sick slave who was
dear unto him?

We must not miss the lesson for ourselves at this point. It can be stated very simply. Religion is not a luxury; it is a necessity. There are situations with which we cannot cope
even though Caesar is backing us with his armies and his millions. Let all of our church buildings be destroyed over night and more would be lost than architectural grandeur.
Aesthetic qualities would be lost,
much of beauty would be destroyed, but a starving man could live without beauty. Spiritual values would be lost as well without which man cannot live above the level of the beasts. Religion is not the scarf-folding around the building of civilization, which, when the building has reached a certain degree of perfection, can be torn away and discarded. Religion is rather the iron girders in the framework of the structure without which civilization itself cannot long endure. Is this extravagant language? When we study the problems of our own life we realize that it is not. There are situations before which we are absolutely helpless without a wholesome religious faith.

There are transitions which we must make. There are gulches which we cannot bridge. From sin to righteousness, from self to God, from sickness to health, from selfishness to service,
from earth to heaven, are humanly impassable chasms. They require bridges which Caesar cannot build.
We speak of the necessities of life as food, shelter, and clothing. But the soul also has necessities. The Caesar-power has limitations, it is insufficient for the deeper needs of life.

When churchmen come to look upon their religious obligations as primary,
a long first step will be taken in the direction of service for humanity.
The world-power must be shot
through with spiritual idealism or it will be frequently self-destructive and always impotent in the face of human need. This throws some light on the deeper meaning of Jesus' saying:
"Seek first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Our religious faith must not be treated as if it could be suited to our convenience and comfort, it is imperative that it be given first consideration.
In his helplessness, the Centurion sent for Christ. This is the first step in the direction of a great service victory.

It was not however because the Centurion was a weakling, for the second chapter in our story emphasizes the intrinsic advantage of a worthy character. The messengers who bore his message to Christ gave an eloquent testimonial to his worthiness to receive this boon. They indicated that he was a man with a broad mind. "He loveth our nation and has himself built us a synagogue," was his first tribute of praise. It would appear that there was nothing of race prejudice or religious bigotry in this man. It is not every man who would build a synagogue for the Jews. In a suburban town with which I am familiar, a committee representing an increasing Jewish population appeared before the Board of Selectmen asking for a grant of land for a cemetery. One of the Board replied: "Yes we will let you have the land for a cemetery, if you will all promise to get into it." We smile at this, but it isn't so funny. There is not one iota of Christianity in it. And yet it is quite typical of the race feeling which makes the service ideal impossible of application. In the second place, the Centurion was a man with a warm heart. He had a sick slave whom he loved, he was dear unto him. He was sick unto death. He was concerned enough to go out of his way to help him. Here is a total absence of what we call class consciousness. Social distinctions raised no artificial barrier between his sympathy and the deep need of his servant. A third sidelight shows us that the Centurion was a man with a deep humility. He did not consider himself worthy to go to Christ, neither did he consider himself worthy that Christ should come to him. Do we find many folks today who are outside the church because they do not consider themselves worthy to come into the church? Some perhaps who say they are not good enough to join the church, but frequently they are the first ones to complain if the minister does not come and call on them. In this Centurion is exemplified an unusual quality of humility. Still another view shows us a man with a great faith. "Only speak the word,"

he said, "and my servant shall be healed." Faith is not so simple a matter as we sometimes think. Faith is a favorable reaction to the impossible and impossible in the direction of obedience to Christ. This quality of faith is rare in Christians now just as it was in ancient Israel then. Jesus commended it with the praise, "I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel."

Our lesson is plain. God can do more for us, if we bring more to him. That is why a miracle of divine grace must be wrought in us before we can become servants of humanity.
The great builder can do more with a straight stick than he can with a crooked one. Sometimes a man brings his mind to God without his heart. He does not think out, and think through his religious problems.
His religion is an emotional effusion without depth and root and tends to fanaticism. But let a man bring a broad mind and a warm heart accompanied by the handmaid of a deep humility and fortified with a great faith and God can do mighty things for him and for humanity. We cannot lift others higher than the level
which we ourselves have attained.
Character is an indispensable asset
in service victories.

The third chapter in our story dis-closes the sufficiency of Christ. We are insufficient for these things even with the backing of Caesar, a worthy character is fundamental, but the secret of the Centurion's achievement was simply that he succeeded in bringing
"Christ and human need together. Success at this point was everything. In fact, the secret of all Christian conquest resides in bringing Christ and human need together. We cannot heal sick slaves. We can bring the Saviour to them.

About forty miles from Denver,
Colorado, is an attractive little western city. The streets are wide and lined with beautiful cottonwoods and other shade trees. The lawns are green and attractive, the houses are lovely and spacious, the park with fountains and flowers. And yet much of the land around Greeley, Colorado, is unclaimed land characterized by patches of sagebrush, cacti, and desert sands. I marvelled at this transformation until I followed with my eye
a wide irrigation canal back to the mountains. The melting snows in the higher peaks of the Rockies fifty miles away, and perennial springs in the foothills watered the thirsty desert until it blossomed as the rose. The secret was in bringing the mountain streams and the desert sands together.
There are vast areas of human life
still unclaimed. Spading and tilling will not avail. The living waters must be brought from the hills of God. Our measure of success in service for humanity is in exact ratio to our ability to bring Christ and human need together.

A classic but kindly criticism of the church is that she spends too much on herself, and not enough on sick slaves. The spiritual culture of our own sheep is of great importance, but we must not forget that Jesus said,
"The field is the world." A homely way of putting it, which may hurt a little, is that in some churches it takes the minister so much of his time to coddle the saints, that there is no time left to convert the sinners. The church is not to be thought of as a little circle, the chief concern of which, is to keep its circumference intact, but rather as a spiritual center radiating lines of influence to the ends of the earth. The outreach of the church should be as long as human need. It is not our business merely to get ourselves into heaven, but also to bring heaven to needy souls.

We are now ready for the last chapter in our story which brings into the foreground the dominance of the spiritual which has been in the background of all we have said. We tend to give too much glory to Caesar and too little glory to Christ. The Centurion's victory was after all Christ's victory. We too frequently write human history in terms of militarism and materialism. Militarism is materialism in an ugly mood and armed to the teeth. The great men of our short-sighted history are generals, and captains of industry. We lose sight of the fact that material progress becomes of real worth only when dominated by spiritual ideals. Situations before which the Caesar-power is impotent, the Christ-power meets victoriously. We do not understand human history until we see it as the tracing of God's finger in the sands of time.

A few weeks ago the city of Cambridge celebrated the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Washington's receiving the command of the colonial army under her famous elm. The President of the United States delivered a patriotic address at the site of this sacred shrine of American history.
Washington's elm, which has now yielded to the decay of time, has been rightly considered a rallying point for patriotic sentiments. But I wonder how many know that thirty-five years before Washington received his military command under that elm, George Whitefield, that flaming evangelist of righteousness and spiritual revival,
used it as a favorite preaching station to Harvard students and folk from the countryside. Whitefield led this revival from Georgia to Maine.
It has occurred to me that perhaps in God's sight it may be as truly Whitefield's elm as Washington's elm. Certain it is that if the righteous principles which Whitefield proclaimed
had not been built into the foundations of the new republic of the West,
there would have been no nation worth saving when Washington took his command.

It is not after all the Caesar-power that makes sick slaves
whole, it is the Christ-power.

There is a legend of a Jerusalem boy who lived two in the days of the Herods. One day he heard a tumult in the Jerusalem streets. He left his play and boy fashion pushed his way to the front of the crowd. A newly appointed Roman official, with all the trappings of a petty monarch, was driving his chariot through the streets. The crowd looked on in awed silence. As the chariot dashed past this boy, the whip lash which had been cracking over the heads of the horses,
was snapped across his eyes. Rome's playful way of impressing her subjects with the folly of kicking against the goads. The boy was struck blind.

He crept back to home and mother to become just another beggar in the Jerusalem streets. One day as the boy was making his plaintive beggar's
call, he again heard a tumult of people rushing to one central point. He was carried along with the crowd and he learned that one called Jesus of Nazareth was entering the city. Another gamin of the streets pushed his little friend to the front where Jesus was healing the sick. And the legend makes this blind boy one of the many covered by that blanket text, "and he healed all that needed healing whom they brought unto him." The boy was touched with the tender fingers of divine love and received his sight to rush home to tell his glad story to the ever listening ear of mother love. Here we have the Caesar-power at its worst, and the Christ-power at its best.
Have you ever thought to stop and thank God that he has given us a risen and living Christ rather than a risen and living Caesar? The service victories are the ones that really count. The greatest translation of the Scriptures is in translating them into kind deeds. That is Christlike. We are not sufficient for these things, but God may use us in bringing Christ and human need together.

THE SILENT CITY

First of A Series of Articles on the Newton Cemetery

One of the most venerable and tender sentiments of the human heart, is that which expresses itself in the devotion to the memory of kith and kin who have passed over the river of life. From the most remote epoch of the world's history, we learn that the dead have always been treated with respect, not to say worshipped, for a natural sentiment leads savage as well as civilized man to pay the last tribute of affection to the bodies of those for whom he once felt affection, esteem or fear. This feeling has been incorporated into many forms of religion, and while, probably at first, was merely a sanitary precaution, has for many centuries become a part of our religious life.

From the early records it appears that Babylonians was the first civilization to establish, what we now call cemeteries, laid out with streets and avenues, and the clearer conception of the after life in its natural aspect, held by the Egyptians, made them develop more fully, what is found only ceptions, only in the case of popular heroes.

In the fourth century, the ceremony of burial were entirely in the hands of the clergy, and at that time, it became customary to attach the cemeteries to the churches, and in the Middle Ages, this led to the custom of making burials within the church edifice itself, a custom which is still continued most notably in the case of the royal family and persons of

NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

Mr. Richard B. Simmons will begin his work as physical director of the Newton Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday, September 8th. Mr. Simmons has been assistant physical director at the Holyoke Y. M. C. A. for the past five years. Part of that time he has been Acting Physical Director.

Mr. Simmons first became interested in the physical work of the Association at Brockton, Mass., where he was a member of the Leaders' Corps, and assisted Mr. George L. Listman, who is now State Secretary of Physical Work in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

When the war broke out Mr. Simmons was in the service and after the armistice was signed he became a Y. M. C. A. War Work Secretary for a year. Since then he has spent a year at Springfield College and four summers at the Association summer school at Silver Bay.

Mr. Melville Westgate, who graduated from Newton High School last June, will be the Assistant Physical Director. Mr. Westgate was a member of the swimming, football, and track teams at the high school last year, and was the winner of the Junior Hexathlon Contest at the Y. M. C. A.

On Tuesday, Mr. Raymond Van Buskirk and Mr. William Bowyer, who have been with the local Association as Assistant Physical Director and Assistant Boys' Secretary, left to attend Springfield College. Both have done fine work with the boys and will be missed.

BURR TENNIS ASSOCIATION

Entries for the Boys' Singles and Girls' Singles are due next Tuesday. Blanks may be obtained at the Burr Playground. All boys and girls, residents of Wards one and seven, who were not 16 on the first of May, are eligible to enter upon payment of a fifty cent membership fee.

The drawings for all other tournaments have been made, and are posted at the playground.

LIGHTNING STRIKES

During the heavy storm last Friday morning lightning struck the house at 510 California street, Newtonville, demolishing the chimney. A still alarm was sent in to the fire department but no fire could be found.

LODGE

Waban Lodge will nominate officers at the next meeting Sept. 16th.

AMERICAN LEGION

Mrs. Curtis Guild of Boston and Nahant, is general chairman of the fete to be held at Deer Cove Inn, Swampscott, Sept. 19, for the benefit of the Leon E. Abbott Post, American Legion, of which Mr. H. Allen Durkee is Commander.

Mrs. Charles R. Butler, who is chairman of the tea and coffee table, assisted by Mrs. John Lavalley, has arranged a novel tea dansant. Mrs. Guild will also aid Mrs. Butler in directing her tea dansant, and will serve coffee and doughnuts.

A group of Boston's most prominent society matrons will pour at Mrs. Butler's tea table. They are the Princess Cantacuzene (Clarissa Curtis), Mrs. Nathaniel Ayer, Mrs. Clarence Edwards, Mrs. Timothy Adamowski, and Mrs. Guy Currier.

The coterie from Boston's younger set assisting Mrs. Butler will be dressed in picturesque Japanese costumes. Miss Kathryn Muir of West Newton is chairman of an attractive candy table which will be in connection with the Japanese Tea Garden. Mrs. Mark Andrews, Mrs. Walter Pratt, and Mrs. Charles Bond are assisting Miss Muir in directing her booth.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE

The Newton High school football candidates reported to Coach Allie Dickinson Tuesday afternoon on Cliff Field. Sixty-five men answered the first call, but this number is expected to be doubled the first of next week when school opens for the coming year. Only light work was given the candidates this week, but as the first game will be played next Saturday on Cliff Field with Quincy High as the local team's opponents, scrimmages and signal practice will soon be given.

Prospects are good for the team to give other aspirants for the Suburban League championship a stiff fight for the league honors, as there are a number of veterans of last year's team making bids for regular positions on this year's lineup. Among these are Captain Tom Gilligan, star halfback for two years; Frank Spain, quarterback; Guy Holbrook, who played halfback two years ago; Francis Lyon, halfback; Chester Pratt, tackle; Joe Forristall, tackle; Carleton McCullough, end; Harold Andrews, center; Pelham Brown, center; Wallace Johnson, tackle; Asa Hall, halfback; Heameon, end; and John O'Neill, guard.

Two O'Neill brothers, whose combined weight totals 450 pounds are out for positions on the eleven. John O'Neill, who is after one of the guard positions, weighs 240 pounds and his younger brother 210.

DEATH OF MR. JONES

Mr. Augustus Jones, a well known author and educator, and a resident of Newton Highlands for over 20 years died yesterday at his home on Lincoln street in that village after a long period of failing health.

He was born in South China, Me., Oct. 16, 1835, a direct descendant of Gov. Thomas Dudley of Massachusetts. Left an orphan at an early age, he was forced to support himself unaided and to work his way through school and college. He graduated from Bowdoin in 1860 and from Harvard law school seven years later.

Entering the Boston law office of Gov. John A. Andrew a year and a half later, he became a partner of the Governor. In 1879 his deep interest in education led him to relinquish his law practice to accept the principalship of the Friends' school at Providence, R. I.

He had defeated the noted Ben Butler in winning election to the Massachusetts Legislature. A pioneer in the development of the modern metropolitan park systems, he was formerly president of the Public Park Association and the Advance Club, both of Providence. Twice he was president of the annual Republican convention in Rhode Island.

His literary works included "The Life of Gov. Thomas Dudley," and a "Sketch of Joseph Dudley, Ninth Governor of Massachusetts," and a large number of pamphlets and articles. He was a life-long member of the Society of Friends, and founder for many years president of the Gov. Thomas Dudley Association.

He married, in 1867, Caroline A. Osborne of Dover, N. H. Surviving him is a son, William A. Jones of Newton Highlands, and a daughter, Mrs. Charles M. Woodman of Richmond, Ind.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 111 Lincoln street, at 12 Saturday.

POLICE COURT

James S. Lamont of Natick, former head of the now defunct G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., was fined $100 Wednesday on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. On a charge of reckless driving, the case was continued until Oct. 2.

Lamont pleaded guilty to the first charge and agreed to pay $200 to the owner of another car, whose machine he struck on Commonwealth avenue, Newton.

Several former star Newton High athletes have been assisting Coach Dickinson with the new candidates. Among them Shattuck Osborne, who expects to land a regular position on the Yale varsity this fall; Ned Dewing, former Newton High and Exeter athlete who enters Harvard this fall; "Bud" Seavey of Dartmouth; and Edgar Burkhardt.

Next week Coach Dickinson intends to divide the squad into five parts, the first and second squads, the "intermediate varsity," "junior varsity," and freshman teams.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN MONDAY

Teachers and Buildings Ready for A Heavyment of Pupils

The public schools of the city will open for the season next Monday and Superintendent U. G. Wheeler and Buildings Commissioner Chadwick have done all that is possible to provide the necessary teachers and school buildings for the heavy enrollment which is sure to come.

The High schools will probably be the most congested part of the educational system, as the new building will not be ready for use until next year. Among the grade schools, Auburndale will probably face the most congestion, and portable buildings will be necessary.

There is considerable curiosity as well as much concern among parents in regard to transportation to and from the High schools, as the local street railway company has openly stated that it will not provide any extra cars for school purposes.

DEATH OF OLD RESIDENT

Mrs. Elizabeth W. C. Bassett, the wife of Mr. Horace S. Bassett, died last Saturday at her home on Morton street, Newton Centre, following an illness of several years with heart trouble. Mrs. Bassett was born on July 8, 1851, at Auburn, N. H., and was the adopted daughter of the late Gardner S. Cheney of Boston. She married Mr. Bassett on May 15, 1871. She was a member of the Baptist Church at Newton Centre and was interested in religious work.

Funeral services were held on Monday from her late home, Rev. Dr. Hess and Rev. Dr. Sullivan officiating, and the interment was at the Newton Cemetery.

DEATH OF MRS. MONROE

Mrs. Sarah Jordan Monroe, wife of Rev. H. Usher Monroe, died at her home at North Scituate on Sunday evening after a protracted illness. Mrs. Monroe was born in Newton Lower Falls, in 1857, the daughter of the late Allen and Mary Fuller Jordan. She was a teacher of the deaf for Schools of Boston, but retired on account of failing health several years ago.

Mrs. Monroe was early in life led to devote her studies to work for deaf children. She found the problem of speech development for congenitally deaf children of intense interest and sought aid from the best known plans both in this country and abroad. The results of her studies were the introduction of rhythmic exercises into class instruction, associated with musical instruments in the hands of the children. The Horace Mann School of Boston was the first in this country to be benefited by this pioneer work in voice and speech teaching. She wrote plays for school entertainments and supervised their successful performance. She also contributed articles relating to the education of the deaf.

Mr. Monroe was a former rector of St. Mary's Church, Lower Falls.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

Complete Report of Select Aldermanic Committee on Newton's Fire and Police Signal System

A new fire alarm system has been recommended by His Honor, the Mayor, the Chief of the Fire Department and the National Board of Fire Underwriters. This committee has been appointed to consider the advisability of installing such a system and also a new police signal system.

At our request, and without expense to the City, the Gamewell Company, which is the only responsible manufacturer of such systems, has made a survey and submitted an exhaustive report. This report embraces the installation of complete new fire alarm system in a new fire proof building, and police signal system. The approximate cost as submitted by the Gamewell Company is as follows:

Central station apparatus	$7,000.00
Underground and aerial cable work	105,000.00
Police Signal System	35,000.00
	$215,000.00
New central station building (Cost estimated by Building Commissioner)	40,000.00
Total Cost	$255,000.00

The new system need not be installed at one time or under a single contract. There are several ways in which the work might be divided. One of the possible ways is as follows:

1st year—Central station apparatus	$75,000.00
2nd year—Central station building	40,000.00
3rd year—One half of cable work	52,500.00
4th year—One half of cable work	52,500.00
5th year—Police Signal System	35,000.00

Fire Alarm System

The present fire alarm system which is of the Gamewell Automatic type was installed in 1897, and has ten circuits with 220 fire alarm boxes. The Central Station is located on the second floor of the Willow Street fire station in Newton Centre. At present one man is employed in the Central Station exclusively for fire alarm service. He is on duty night and day for 21 hours with three hours off for meals and one day off in three. At night he sleeps at the Central Station. When he is off duty his place is filled by a fireman or by a man from the wire department. At times when no fireman or wire department man is available the Central Station is without an attendant. There are now two telephones of the New England Tel. & Tel. Company in the Central Station, one in the Newton Fire Station, and one in the West Newton Fire Station. Telephone alarms may be received at any of these stations. There is also in each of the fire stations a private telephone maintained by the City. This private line is now used in despatching fire apparatus when an alarm is not sent out over the box system.

The new fire alarm system recommended by the Gamewell Company is of the manual type. It has twenty circuits with provision for ten additional circuits which may be installed later if required, thus having an ultimate capacity of at least 600 boxes. Under this system the tower bells would be placed on a separate circuit and used only in case of a second alarm. Alarms would be transmitted in about one fourth of the time required at present. The Gamewell Company recommends that the new Central Station be located in a new fire proof building near the Willow Street Fire Station on the site now occupied by the Willow Street Stables.

Under the new system it is recommended by the Underwriters that two operators be on duty at the Central Station at all times on eight hour shifts, making six operators in all, but it would probably be possible to get along with one operator at a time or three in all for some years.

Under the new system a new telephone switchboard of the New England Tel. & Tel. Company would be installed in the Central Station, with several trunk lines and a private line to each fire station. All telephone alarms would then be received at the Central Station. The installation would be made by the New England Tel. & Tel. Company. The annual telephone service charge would be about $1200.

Among the reasons advanced for a new fire alarm system are the following, which will be commented on briefly and present our findings:

Reason 1. A new system will eliminate a dangerously over-crowded condition of certain fire alarm circuits.

The present circuits are as follows:

No. 1. Newton	22 boxes
2. Newtonville	31 boxes
3. West Newton	32 boxes
4. Auburndale	26 boxes
5. Lower Falls (Waban)	21 boxes
6. Newton Highlands	15 boxes
7. Newton Upper Falls	21 boxes
8. Newton Centre	20 boxes
9. Oak Hill	7 boxes
10. Newton	25 boxes
Total	220 boxes

The National Board of Fire Underwriters recommends that not over 20 boxes be placed on a circuit. Putting more than 20 boxes on a circuit is considered "overcrowding" and is characterized as "dangerous" in the sense that if the circuit is out of order more than twenty boxes will be out of service. We are advised by the Chief of the Fire Department, that there were nine instances in 1923 and nine in 1924 when a circuit was out of order, the longest period being thirty minutes. There has been but one instance in the memory of the present Chief of the Fire Department of a box failing to work when it was pulled. The number of fire alarms is increasing, but the proportion of box alarms is decreasing. In our opinion this proportion will not change materially. In 1924 there was an average of about one box alarm to a box and it will probably be a considerable time before this average increases much. Under these conditions the chance of a box failing to work when it is pulled seems to us slight. See Table 6. We find, on consideration of these facts, that the so-called "overcrowding" does not, at present, create a condition which can properly be described as "dangerous."

Reason 2. A new system with an ultimate capacity of 600 boxes will permit additional protection to be given to certain sections of the city and provide for the growth of the city.

When the system was installed in 1897 there were 125 boxes. This number has been increased from year to year until there are now 220 boxes. See Tables 4 and 6.

Newton has an area of 18 square miles and therefore 12 boxes per square mile. Of 21 Massachusetts cities of which information is available, seven cities have more boxes per square mile and thirteen cities have less boxes per square mile. See Tables 15 and 16.

Taking the population of Newton as 53,000, there are 4.1 boxes per 1,000 persons. In these same Massachusetts cities there are three cities with more boxes per 1,000 of population and 17 cities with less boxes per 1,000. See Tables 13 and 14.

Neither of these methods of comparison is wholly reliable because of the unequal distribution of population in the different cities and because none of them is separated into nine villages as is Newton. They give, however, some basis of comparison between Newton and other cities.

In 1923 the National Board of Fire Underwriters reported that "about 25 additional boxes are needed for proper distribution." The plan which accompanies the report of the Gamewell Company has indicated on it boxes at 80 new locations recommended by the Chief of the Fire Department.

An analysis by the committee of the distribution of fire alarm boxes in Newton shows that:

- In mercantile and manufacturing districts boxes are well spaced.
- In older thickly settled residence districts boxes are well spaced.
- In new residence districts there are no buildings or groups of buildings at a considerable distance from boxes.

This analysis is substantially in agreement with the analysis made by the Underwriters in 1923.

The number of telephones on the Newton Exchanges has increased from about 1,000 in 1897 to over 18,000 in 1924. See Table 19. There is now a telephone in practically every house. The use of telephones for sending fire alarms has steadily increased in this period with the result that in the last five years 65% of the alarms have originated on the telephone. See Tables 1, 2 and 3. It is stated that the telephone is not a satisfactory means of sending alarms, from the point of view of the Fire Department, that incomprehensible, incomplete, and incorrect directions are frequently given and delay ensues. While this is no doubt true the committee is of the opinion that the telephone is, to a large extent, supplanting the fire alarm box as a means of calling the fire department in residential districts in Newton, whether the boxes are numerous or scarce, and that nothing that anyone can do will stop this tendency. Telephone alarms may in some cases cause confusion and delay but taken as a whole the protection that is given by the telephone for outwards the losses that may ensue from the comparatively few cases of confusion and delay.

Some of the confusion of telephone alarms can apparently be attributed to the many instances of streets, terraces, avenues and courts in different parts of the city having the same names. In our opinion many of these names ought to be changed as soon as possible.

Twenty-one new boxes can be added now to existing circuits at locations recommended by the Chief of the Fire Department with the result that the total boxes on four circuits will be increased.

In our opinion these new boxes can safely be added now. There are at least a dozen existing boxes that in our opinion are either unnecessary and can be moved to new locations at which boxes are recommended, or that are inside buildings or grounds and can be made to serve a larger territory by moving them outside.

We find, therefore, that while there are some residential districts in which boxes are not as closely spaced as in other districts, with the installation and redistribution of certain boxes as indicated above, and the redistribution of others and with a telephone in practically every house, sufficient protection will be given for the present.

Reason 3. A new system would permit the central station to be put in a fire proof building and remove the danger of the entire system being put out of service by a fire in the present central station.

In our opinion the Willow Street Stable next door to the present Central Station is a serious fire menace and ought to be removed now. We are advised that the only expense involved will be for grading the grounds. After this stable is removed the Central Fire Station will be well isolated from other buildings and in our opinion certain alterations can be made which will make the likelihood of a serious fire in that building very remote.

We have considered the advisability of moving the present station apparatus to a new fire proof building and we have an estimate for this of $3,800 from the Gamewell Company. In our opinion, however, such removal would be unwise.

We find that the need for a new building is not pressing. Reason 4. A new fire alarm system would increase the efficiency of the Department. At present the men are often ready to leave their fire station before the first round of an alarm has sounded and are obliged to wait until it has finished before leaving. Under a new system alarms would be received on faster time and the men could leave more promptly. This saving in time might amount to one half a minute.

Under a new system circuits would be shorter and trouble could be located more readily.

Under a new system circuits could be tested more thoroughly than at present.

Whenever telephone alarms are received for building fires the practice is for the central station operator to send in an alarm on the nearest box numbers. In some cases in residential districts boxes are at considerable distance from houses and the department may have difficulty in locating the fire. In our opinion this difficulty will be lessened by establishing a few "phantom boxes."

We find that a new fire alarm system would increase the efficiency of the department to the extent indicated above.

Reason 5. A new fire alarm system would result in a reduction in insurance rates.

On completion of new system as laid out by the Gamewell Company a survey by the National Board of Fire Underwriters could be asked for, and we are advised that as a result there would be the following reduction in rates:

Frame dwellings	10%
Brick dwellings	12 1/2%
Frame mercantile	4%
Brick mercantile	6-11/100%

It is impossible for anyone to estimate with any degree of accuracy what these reductions would amount to in annual cost of insurance carried in this City.

Fire Alarm Boxes

Of the 220 fire alarm boxes now in use about 100 are of the Gardner type. If one of these boxes is pulled when an alarm is coming in from another box the alarm from the Gardner box will never be received. No more boxes of this type are now being installed in Newton and existing boxes are slowly being replaced by the later "succession" type. About ten such replacements will be made this year. If one of these "succession" type boxes is pulled when an alarm is coming in from another box the "succession" type box will wait until the alarm from the first box has finished and then it will come in. We are advised that no instance can be recalled of two alarms having been pulled simultaneously in Newton, but it may happen and in our opinion, a liberal attitude should be taken toward terms and future budgets covering such replacements asked for by the Chief of the Fire Department.

Fire Losses Per $1,000 of Assessed Valuation of Buildings and Per Capita

On tables 7 and 9 there is given a statement of the fire losses in Newton each year from 1897 to 1924. These fire losses are gradually increasing but not as rapidly as the valuations of buildings. The result is that the fire loss per $1,000 of the Assessors' valuation of buildings is decreasing. The figures are as follows:

1897-1900	$2.04 per $1,000 valuation
1901-1904	1.98 per $1,000 valuation
1905-1908	1.44 per $1,000 valuation
1909-1912	2.11 per $1,000 valuation
1913-1916	1.81 per $1,000 valuation
1917-1920	1.77 per $1,000 valuation
1921-1924	1.58 per $1,000 valuation

On tables 11 and 12 there is given a statement of the average fire loss per capita for ten years (1915-1924) in Newton and 31 other cities in Massachusetts. From this statement it appears that Newton's average fire loss per capita in this period was $1.82. In this period there were but five cities with a lower average and there were 26 cities with a higher average.

Police Signal System

The present system consists of a Gamewell Police Desk at Police Headquarters in West Newton and 47 police boxes located in various parts of the city.

These boxes are used by patrolmen for communicating with Headquarters for regular intervals. There is at present no way by which Headquarters can communicate with a patrolman except when he rings a box. If a message is received by telephone at Headquarters that one or more officers are needed in any part of the city, it is now necessary to send an officer by automobile or motorcycle from Headquarters or wait until the patrolman in that vicinity rings a box. The police boxes often fail to ring and the Police Desk frequently requires repairs.

The report submitted by the Gamewell Company, includes a new Police Desk at Headquarters equipped for ten new police signal circuits with apparatus for recording box signals together with telephone equipment for communicating with patrolmen on the streets. The desk will also be arranged for operating ten flash light circuits for recalling patrolmen on the streets when desired. Provision is made for transferring four of the circuits to a new Police Station on the South side of the city if such a station should ever be needed.

The 47 present police boxes will be renovated and three new boxes installed.

Wherever police signal circuits are needed in the same locations as fire alarm circuits the wires are run in the same conduits and the cost is included in the estimate for fire alarm circuits. In order to complete the main cable for the police circuits certain other cables will be needed and the cost of these together with the police desk at Headquarters, flash lights, new boxes, and renovating old (Continued on Page 5.)

note at Westminster Cathedral. It was believed that the proximity to places of prayer would benefit the souls of the departed, and that the emanations from the bodies of the faithful would warm the hearts of the faithful. We find many evidences of this custom in New England, one being in our own city at St. Mary's Church, Newton Lower Falls.

The most picturesque cemeteries are those of the Turks, and from them, undoubtedly, came the first ideas of modern cemeteries, with ornamental trees and shrubs. Around Constantinople, the cemeteries are in large tracts of cypress woods. A grave is never reopened, a new place being found for each body. A tombstone of marble is erected on each grave, surrounded by a carved turban for a man or a carved palm branch for a woman. A cypress is usually planted beside the grave, as its odors are supposed to neutralize the emanations from the ground.

But it is in the United States that the possible beauty of a cemetery has been developed, and it is in this very city, that possibly, the highest ideal has been realized. The Newton Cemetery, while not the largest, is certainly one of the most beautiful in the country.

Modern cemeteries have been developing more and more towards a more natural style of beauty. Efforts are being made in the older cemeteries to abolish the hideous iron fences and the granite boundaries which hitherto have enclosed the individual lots. There has also been a tendency to restrict the number and size of tombstones with a result that the cemetery is becoming more and more park-like and natural.

The Newton Cemetery has advanced rapidly in these directions, and today stands easily at the head. It has a prestige, which is not confined to the state, or to New England, but is really national in its character.

The one hundred and fifteen acres of the Newton Cemetery are located in the heart of the city, touching Walnut street, Beacon street, Homer street and Commonwealth avenue. The main entrance is on Walnut street, with a possible approach from Commonwealth avenue, in the future. The land is of a rolling nature and the five ponds have been treated in such a manner as to add greatly to the natural beauty. One unique feature of the cemetery is the flowering shrubbery which forms the boundary and completely encloses the place. With-in the cemetery are many trees, including as fine a plantation of oaks and maples as can be found anywhere.

Newton is indeed fortunate in retaining its cemetery and can heartily endorse the following words of Chief Justice Story, who said:

"Let us erect the memorials of our love, our gratitude and our glory. Here let the brave repose, who have died in the cause of their country. Here let the statesman rest, who has achieved the victories of peace, not less renowned than war. Here let genius find a home, that has sung the immortal strains, or has instructed with still diviner eloquence. Here let learning and science, the votaries of inventive art and the teachers of the philosophy of nature come. Here let youth and beauty, blighted by premature decay, drop the blossoms into the virgin earth, and here let age retire, ripened for the harvest. Above all, here let the benefactors of mankind, the good, the merciful, the meek, the pure in heart be congregated, for to them belongs a song of praise. And let us take comfort, may let us rejoice, that in future ages, long after we are gathered to the generations of other days, thousands of kindling hearts will here repeat the sublime declarations, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, for they rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

boxes, is included in the estimate of $35,000 submitted in the first page of this report.

In our opinion, a new Police Signal System ought to be installed soon, but the work can be done more advantageously, and at much less expense in connection with a new fire alarm system and unless the need becomes more pressing than at present the installation can be deferred until such time as it is necessary to install a new fire alarm system. In the meantime an occasional replacement of an old movement with a new one in existing police boxes will help to lessen the trouble now experienced from badly worn boxes failing to work. In our opinion, a liberal attitude should be taken toward items in future budgets covering such replacements asked for by the Inspector of Wires.

Water Mains and New Hydrants

In our study of the fire alarm system it has come to our notice that two urgent recommendations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters made in their report of August 1923 are not being carried out as rapidly as in our opinion, they should be. The first relates to the extension of water mains. The Board has this year authorized a part of a 20 inch main on Commonwealth avenue, recommended by the Underwriters, and in our opinion this entire main ought to be pushed to completion, and followed by the installation of other mains recommended by the Underwriters, as rapidly as possible.

The other matter has to do with the installation of new hydrants. The Underwriters urgently recommend "that additional hydrants be installed in residential districts so that there will be one hydrant for each 100,000 square feet of area served." They state that in order to comply with this recommendation "at least 500 additional hydrants should be installed." In his report of 1924 the Chief of the Fire Department specified over 150 locations where new hydrants are urgently needed. By referring to table 18 it will be seen that the installation of new hydrants has proceeded slowly in the past twenty-five years. In our opinion, it should proceed more rapidly and it is imperative that at least 50 new hydrants should be installed in each of the years 1925, 1926, and 1927.

Adequate fire protection is, of course, dependent upon water supply and distribution and we are therefore taking the liberty of bringing these two matters to the attention of the Board in this report.

Recommendations

We recommend:

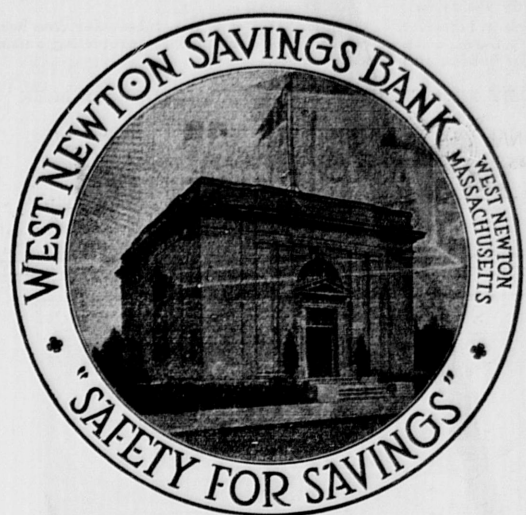

1. No action at present on the installation of a new fire alarm system and new police signal system.
2. The removal of the Willow street stable and yard to some other location at once.
3. The installation of a new auxiliary generator and appliances at the Central Station (approximate cost $1,000.)
4. The installation at the Central Station of a new telephone switch board of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Company, with at least three trunk lines and private lines to each fire station. (Approximate annual service charge $1,200.)
5. The employment of two additional men at the Central Station making three men in all so that a fire alarm operator shall be on duty at all times. (Approximate annual cost $3,200—$4,000.)
6. Alterations in Central Station which will reduce fire hazards.
7. Changing the names of several streets, avenues, terraces, and courts to avoid duplication of names.
8. The removal of fire alarm boxes from the inside to the outside of school houses. The redistribution of boxes in a few localities where they are too near together and the establishment of a few "phantom" boxes in some districts where boxes are at considerable distance from houses.
9. That the water distribution system be strengthened as rapidly as possible by installing new mains essentially as recommended in the report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters made in August 1923.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER

Leverett D. G. Bentley

Well, well! How long must Newton wait for its Mayorality contest? Here is Boston already in the early stages of an interesting political scuffle and Newton remains calm and unruffled. Boston candidates are almost too numerous to mention, as the old-fashioned society editor used to say of the bride's wedding gifts. But Boston's candidates will be mentioned, or their press agents will lose their jobs. There has been some excellent publicity work done already and more may be expected. Several candidates have carefully prepared statements by means of which they burst out on the front pages of the daily newspapers. Each has recently interviewed a photographer and had prepared for reproduction a print of the choicest of a half-dozen negatives. And not a word from the Newton possibilities. Is it playing fair? Why should Newton be so far behind Boston? Newton has denied itself many things that other cities enjoy, or think they enjoy, such as street carnivals, parades, old home days and other gala events. That may be sound reasoning in a community of homes, but we do not believe that a Newton citizen should be omitted when the opportunity is so close at hand. If the cost of a campaign in Newton approximated that of an individual candidate in Boston there might be some reason. But a Newton Mayorality candidate doesn't have to "open a barrel," as the practical politicians express it. He merely has to open his mouth. That "silence is golden" may be the answer of some, but after all there is "free speech," so the average appears to be about even. Labor Day has come and gone and the city election is only three months distant. Perhaps it may be contended that it is a wise candidate who knows when to hold his tongue. But what of the public? Haven't they some rights, especially the right of criticism and denunciation and what not? A contemporary has said that the possible candidates for Mayor in Newton are "sitting pretty." If he means they are sitting for their portraits that is satisfactory. But if he means they are simply "playing safe and cozy," why that's a different matter. We demand that the silence, and not necessarily the laws, be broken and at once!

As one of those unfortunate individuals to whom the ownership of a fountain pen means nothing we can discuss the general situation of public writing places. As far as that goes the most commonly used and best known are those at the postoffice and the bank. Our experience has been much more extended at the postoffice. We regret that it is not the other way round, but, be that as it may, we are really interested in pens. It is quite as it should be that the bank provides the higher grade of pen. Then, too, in a bank a pen is not abused. There is no occasion for it as the ordinary bank customer can say what little he has to say with a minimum of ink. In a postoffice one is quite certain to dash off several thoughts, and if only a line or two the need of ink is plain. We have often thought, when circumstances forced us to grab up a postoffice pen, that the person just ahead of us must have tried to open a can of smoking tobacco with it. Either that or the lock on a suitcase. We know that the postoffice clerks replenish the pen-holders and the inkwells the first thing every morning, and that these officials have too many other duties than to keep their eye on the pen-pusher who drops in. If the pen-points are not to be used as a post office should have salary docked. We should not hold them responsible for the quality of the ink. Happily one doesn't expect the highest grade of writing fluid for nothing, or, at least, one has hardly the right to such expectations. You simply have to take a chance. In other words, "Be sure it writes, then go ahead." Bitter experience has taught us to try out all the pens. As well as we can remember one cannot always find a complete equipment; that is, not all pen-holders contain pen-points. There may be some destitute of such. But the persistent person will somehow manage to get hold of something that will make a mark, and what more may one expect. If it happens that we wake early some morning, and have nothing else planned, we are going to be the first one at the postoffice to see what a fresh Government pen looks and acts like.

Having started on the subject of postoffices we cannot repress a desire to tell of something we learned in the main postoffice not long ago. It may be that some of our readers, many of them in fact, or perhaps all of them will express surprise at our limited knowledge of postoffice matters. However, we are ready to admit whatever may be thought of us in that regard. The sign "Metered Mail," displayed in the corridor, made us stop and ask our companion, "Just what is metered mail?" He was as ignorant as we and said, "I pass." This left only one thing to be done—find out. We were familiar with metered gas and metered water and metered electricity, but not with metered mail. The very beginning of our investigation made us say, "Of course, why didn't we think of that." We were looking at the system whereby large concerns rent a machine by which all mail sent out is cancelled without stamps. Needless to say all Newton people have come to know this plan and perhaps daily receive letters without stamps. We were shown a meter, how it is sealed, how the firm using it pays for the cancellation marks in advance. Then a machine was put in operation for our benefit and we observed the letters shooting through. It was pointed out to us that the sealing of the envelope and the cancellation of the postage could be done in one process if the flap of the envelope was on the same side of the stamp. But that would be stamping the back of an envelope, wouldn't it? However, here is a modern contrivance that saves the buying of large quantities of stamps, the labor of putting them on the envelopes and of sealing. Another one of those advances in modern business. We wondered what the philatelists think of this idea. Where will their choice collections of stamps come from in the future? Suppose this plan is put into operation when one carries a letter to the postoffice and instead of buying a stamp and putting it on one just hands the letter and the money to a clerk? What will become of the "postage stamp flirtation" in which the position of a stamp on an envelope had a significance that only lovers could understand? Where are the children to get the fun of "licking" stamps if this "metered mail" idea completely supplants the ancient and original method? The complications are many. And yet the philatelists have not yet taken any action. Will the meter come before them at their next convention. We shall not be surprised if they voice a protest. We are a believer in efficiency as long as it doesn't upset sentiment too much. Although it would be more convenient to have a stamp cancellation machine in every home, we somehow think we would rather have the stamps and the fun of hunting for one in every corner of our desk.

"Back to School Week" begins next Monday. Perhaps that is a trifle inaccurate and for the word "week," as editors say, one should read "weeks." Anyway, school will start and the teachers will resume their jobs of teaching the young idea how to shoot. We sometimes wonder if all those who are numbered among the pupils, from the elementary to the high, appreciate all that is done for them. They would scarcely be human if they did, as the youthful mind is too much filled with other interests to think of the sacrifices of their parents, the patience of their teachers and the sincere labors of the School Committee members—all to provide the best possible educational facilities. But they will come to realize it and, we hope, not too late. They will come to look back, perhaps in their twenties, but surely in their thirties, at the times when the road to learning seemed rough and almost impassable and then someone, maybe at home, maybe at school, and maybe at both places, extended a helping hand and they were enabled to make the grade. To those of us who have crossed the threshold of a schoolroom for the last time the reopening of schools invariably brings a flood of memories. Some of them are sad, some of them happy and some of them mixed. Yet altogether they are worth while, for not only were there school lessons to be learned, but lessons of life. The former seemed the hardest, but were they? Here is a question each must answer for himself. Nothing in after years will hold a deeper place in these youngsters' memories than the friendships formed in school. One of our closest friends is a well known public official who is frequently called upon to go about the state to address all sorts of gatherings. Recently he said to us, "I think the most I hear when I hear when I meet a group of people is, 'Don't you remember, we used to go to school together?' or, 'I have a cousin who used to go to school with you.'" Continuing, he said, "School days seem to have fixed themselves in the minds of everybody as firmly as anything that ever happened in their lives." All we wish for the pupils of today is as rich a store of delightful memories of school days as we ourselves possess.

An office boy who regularly this summer swept the floor of the Presidential offices in Lynn when such a task was not part of his duties, was rewarded with the present of $5. The presentation was made by the President himself and the fact was duly chronicled in the newspapers throughout the country with the boy's name in big type. Sort of riding to fame on a broomstick!

ROTARY CLUB

On account of the holiday, the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club was held on Tuesday with members of the Watertown Rotary club as guests. There was plenty of good natured rivalry between the two clubs in the matter of singing and between the song leaders. President John F. Tufts of the Watertown Club presided and introduced the speaker, Rev. Frank W. Taylor of the M. E. Church, Watertown. Mr. Taylor made an inspiring address on the poem of Edwin Markham, "The Shoes of Happiness."

Father of America's Playgrounds to Preside at National Recreation Congress

JOSEPH LEE OF BOSTON,
President of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

JOSEPH LEE was studying law in Harvard when America's first public play space, a "sand garden," was opened in Boston. Now, with in forty years, he sees 8,115 public playgrounds and recreation centers spreading health and joy in 711 cities as a result of a movement he has fostered. He sees more and more young Americans given opportunities for the kind of happy outdoor play he had as a boy. And October 5-10 he will preside at the Twelfth National Recreation Congress, where some six hundred leaders in our national life will discuss the problems and the future of public recreation.
"The boy without a playground is the man without a job," Mr. Lee has said. "I have seen a boy, after he had made a study of the reasons why boys and girls go wrong. Much of the waywardness of children is due to a lack of wholesome outlet for their play spirit, he found. And plenty of real play is also a cure for the restlessness and ill health of grownups."
Mr. Lee has never practiced law, but has devoted all his time to unpaid social service. His inherited property he has regarded as a public trust. He has been responsible for much social and educational progress in Boston and Massachusetts, out his writings on play and his leadership in the recreation movement have been his greatest contribution. Since 1910 he has been President of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, the organization formed in 1903 by President Roosevelt and others to help cities provide play areas and play leaders for the "free and a life of their people."
The National Recreation Congress takes place in Asheville, N. C., "the Land of the Sky." Recreation superintendents, educators, manufacturers, clubwomen, writers and city officials are among the types of leaders who will attend. The topics to be discussed include rural recreation, the national park study, community music and drama, recreation life for girls and home recreation.

has set a new standard for dairying in New England

NEVER before has the family milk bottle been so uniformly rich in the good things that make for health, strength and good digestion. Never before has the family milk supply enjoyed the intensive supervision that now inspects, directs and guards the production of Hood's Grade "A." We have selected the finest milk producing centers of New England, from these we have chosen the best individual dairies, we have instituted advanced dairying methods, we have established a system of veterinary inspection and laboratory check that hitherto has been unknown to any large milk supply in New England. This finer, richer milk is ready for everyone. You owe yourself and the children a chance to test its wonderful quality.

Hood's Grade "A" Milk is produced in accordance with the new Massachusetts standards for Grade "A" Milk and we believe no more stringent set of regulations were ever drawn for a family milk supply. Not only is it protected by our own supervision, but every official safeguard provided by the regulations is employed to further protect its fine quality.
A few days more and the stream of Summer absentees will be heading homeward. The children will be getting ready for school. Let us have a bottle or two or whatever you need of Hood's Grade "A" Milk on your doorstep when you arrive. The children will enjoy it as they never enjoyed milk before. Give them the milk they will like—Hood's Grade "A."

If you are in the country when you read this, write us a postal card and say when you will be home and the amount of milk you will need. When you arrive your order will be there to welcome you. If you are now at home, a telephone call, a postal card, or a word to the Hood salesman will start your Grade "A" service at once.

THE SILENT CITY

Second of A Series of Articles on the Newton Cemetery

"Let Us Forget." These words of the poet are surely unnecessary to the residents of this city, for the beauty and attractiveness of the Newton cemetery are a consolation and benediction to the tender memories of our loved ones who have gone before. This sentiment must have been impressed on the hundreds of visitors who are present recently at the Memorial exercises of the Grand Army of the Republic, as well as on those who sorrow had brought hither, for in its history has the Cemetery been so beautiful as now.

All its history has been conspicuous, selected and purchased a tract of land beautiful for situation and in adaptability, remarkably favorable for such use. The present day and generation will endorse that conclusion, and add eloquent testimony to the splendid work of men like Dr. Henry Bigelow and Mr. Marshall S. Rice, who made the first plans for the grounds, and to Mr. Warren P. Tyler, a trustee for 46 years, and a former president of the corporation, who left a fund of $1000 to be used in planting rhododendrons within the Cemetery grounds.

NORUMBEGA S. S. ASS'N

The Norumbega District Council of Religious Education held its Fall Meeting Tuesday evening at the Newton Y. M. C. A., with a large attendance from Waltham, Waltham, Belmont, and Newton, representing 24 different churches of 8 denominations.

Mr. G. L. Foster, of Belmont Baptist Church, presided.

The Church Vacation Schools in Waltham, Watertown, Newton Centre and Newtonville were reported respectively by Mr. Henry Johnson, Rev. A. L. Blacklock, Prof. J. P. Berkeley and Mr. Hayden L. Stright. There were 535 children enrolled in these schools, most of which lasted for a period of four weeks, every morning of the week except Saturday and Sunday.

The Executive Secretary of the District was personally a member of the teaching staff in the Waltham Vacation School. Her other duties for the summer have been Instructor at the Northfield Summer School of Religious Education, and Group Leader at Camp Merrowista, a young people's camp for the purpose of Christian leadership training.

Mr. Foster outlined the nation wide system of religious education for Protestant Churches, showing how this District is related to the International Council and the Massachusetts Council of Religious Education. He also reported on his attendance at the Winnepesaukee Adult School for Leadership Training, where he spent two enjoyable and profitable weeks in August under instruction of national reputation.

The reports of work for the coming year included the Young People's Division committee, Mr. H. L. Stright, chairman, the Music Committee, Mr. A. A. Cole, chairman, and the Community School Committee, Mr. Nathan Heard, chairman. Mr. Heard and Professor Berkley, Community School Director, both spoke of the need for personal work by pastors, superintendents and other interested in the securing of students for the Community School of Religious Education. This school exists only for the benefit of the local churches, to help them in solving their problem of teacher-training. The School opens its fifth year on October 12, at 7:30 P. M., at the Newtonville Methodist Episcopal Church.

FIELD DAY

The annual field day of the Stowe and Woodward Athletic Association held last Saturday at Chauncey park, Westboro, was a great success, largely on account of the careful supervision of Mr. Edward M. Anderson, president and Mr. F. H. Hammetton, the treasurer. The trip to the park was made by auto and the first event on the program was a ball game between the single and unfortunate men, and which was won by the bachelors.

R. B. Adams as a "brownie" was the chief feature of the swimming event. Among the winners were Thomas Kenney, potato race, Arthur Wallace, obstacle and 100-yard dash, De George and Fontenay, three-legged race, hard rubber department, tug of war, Frank McGuinness, time race, and the entire party in the race for dinner.

The boys found policeman Bill Barker most courteous and Thomas Gamble, the actor, most entertaining. Mr. Harry Bennet in his talk on "Frolics and Frailties" of the rubber roll business was interesting and Mr. R. B. Adams, technical superintendent was strong with his report.

While Mr. Fred Woodward, president of the company was unable to attend, some of the other officials who were present included Sherman B. Ward, treasurer, R. B. Adams, Fred H. Learned, John Barrett, Charles Taylor, Patrick Sullivan, and Roy Tewksbury.

Possibly the people of Newton are not aware of this splendidly organized body of real fellows making for a successful industry and yet Mr. Learned has been known to further compliment his company by saying that the good fellowship and the esprit de corps is augmented by the comely young ladies employed by the company who so ardently co-operate.

SIXTIETH WEDDING DAY

The 60th wedding anniversary of the Rev. and Mrs. George G. Phipps of Walnut street, Newton Highlands, was the occasion for an outpouring of the residents of the village to a public reception tendered the couple at Lincoln Hall on Saturday evening. Nearly four hundred persons congratulated them and enjoyed the program of music and speaking arranged in their honor.

The Rev. and Mrs. Phipps went to the front of the hall to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March which was played on the piano by Mr. George Loud, organist of the Old North Church of Boston and nephew of Mr. Phipps. Here the couple received the warm felicitations of their friends, who signed a guest book which was later presented to the Rev. and Mrs. Phipps. The ministers of the other churches in Newton Highlands and their wives assisted in the receiving.

The Hon. Seward W. Jones, chairman of the committee of arrangements then turned the evening over to Mr. George H. Mellen who was master of ceremonies. A solo by Miss Marion Bates, who sang a composition of Rev. Mr. Phipps was a feature of the musical program which consisted of vocal and instrumental numbers. Among the speakers were Mayor Childs, Rev. Charles O. Farrar of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Woodrow of the Congregational Church of the Rev. Wilbur D. Grose of the Methodist Church, and the Rev. William M. Mick of the Oak Hill Methodist Church. Mrs. William M. Mick read a poem written for the occasion by Mrs. J. G. A. Carter of Needham Heights and Mr. Phipps responded with a poem of his own. Mrs. Carter's poem was as follows:

AUTUMN BLOOM

We prize the bright-hued Autumn flowers
So gay till frosts impend;
Their hardy leafage richly green,
Their showy tints that lend
A warm, inspiring glow to cheer
The year's approaching end.
And, as the Autumn's vivid hues
Make earth's home gardens fair;
The ripened, brilliant mind of age
May yield a beauty rare,
Flowers of poetry and art
Spring up that all may share.

Such are the flowers whose seeds you've sown
To help some weaker soul.
Long have you scattered words of hope,
And lightened Sorrow's toll.
Brought light to cheer the deepest night,
Given strength to reach the goal.

Dear, honored friends, as one, you've lived
For truth, and beauty here.
May your united powers long find Life's Autumn, sweetly clear
And, in God's time, the fadeless bloom
Of heaven's exalted sphere.

The Rev. Mr. Phipps and his wife were presented with a check for a substantial sum by Mr. Mellen. For forty-seven years the couple have occupied their home on Walnut street near Floral street and are held in the highest esteem by everybody in Newton Highlands and their friends throughout the city. Mr. Phipps, who is 86 years of age, still leads an active life, having preached Sunday, September 6th at Rindge, N. H.

Mr. Phipps, son of a Congregational minister, graduated from Amherst College in 1882, just twenty-five years after his father, Rev. William Phipps, had been granted a degree by the same institution. By 1885 he was graduated from Andover Theological Seminary, and in that same year was married. For three years following he supplied the pulpit at the church at Ashland, but after his ordination in 1888 he became pastor of the Congregational Church, Wellesley. Ten years later he took charge of the Congregational Church, Newton Highlands, where he remained for fifteen years—until 1893, when he retired, preaching for eight years, following as supply at the Oak Hill Congregational Church nearby.

Mrs. Phipps is the daughter of Captain Russell Carruth, a member of the Massachusetts Legislature in 1860—from Worcester County. During the war with the South, he commanded Company H, Fifty-Third Massachusetts Regiment, serving in the Department of the South under General Butler. The family home was at Phillipston, northern Worcester County, and from there the then Miss Carruth went to Mt. Holyoke to college, graduating in 1863. She met Mr. Phipps in 1860 at a conference of teachers at Hubbardston. Thus she has known him for sixty-five years. During this time the couple have traveled extensively, three times crossing the Atlantic.

The committee in charge included besides Mr. Jones, Howard S. Hiltz, Sanford E. Thompson, Mrs. Jessie Waterhouse, Charles T. Noble, and Mrs. William M. Mick.

BUS REGULATIONS PASSED

Aldermen Take First Step Towards Inaugurating A New System of Transportation in Newton

Among a large amount of routine business transacted by the Board of Aldermen at the regular session Monday night was the passage of an order entitled "Bus Regulations" which now places the board in a position to issue licenses to petitioners for bus lines as it sees fit. Up to this time the board has allowed several petitions to remain on the table but it is now expected that action on these will be forthcoming.

Alderman Lloyd stated that he should like to see Sections 10 and 7 of the Bus Regulations which will be printed in full in a later issue, amended so that provisions could be made to carry standing passengers not exceeding the number of passengers stated in license. Alderman Madden said that the committee had taken this point under close consideration and had concluded that the seating capacity of a bus should determine the number stated in the license as a bus went through traffic in and out, stops and starts with more or less rapidity and standing patrons would add to the discomfort of the seated passengers whereas an electric car running on tracks was an entirely different proposition. When the question was put later the amendment was defeated by a voice vote.

Alderman Ball moved that Section 13 be amended so as to bring all buses to a full stop at every thoroughfare crossing designated by the Chief of Police as well as at every grade railroad crossing. The amendment was passed. The regulations as amended were then passed by a unanimous vote of the members present, Alderman Flitts being absent.

An order authorizing the Mayor to make a contract with the M. & B. St. Rwy. Co. relative to bus service and transportation of pupils which has been on the table for several weeks were allowed to remain there.

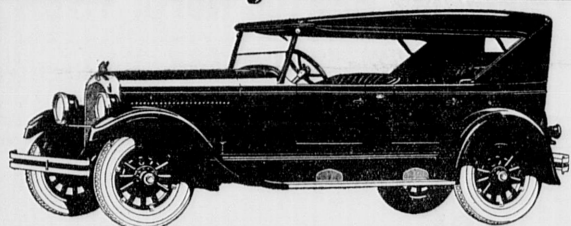

Prior to the usual recess Alderman Earle asked that a report be made upon the petition of W. J. Gibson for a garage and filling station at the corner of Washington street and Kempton place when the meeting came to order again. This petition was given a public hearing last June and considerable opposition was made by residents of the vicinity. Alderman Lloyd replied:

that the committee was prepared to report favorably upon the garage but not on the filling station several weeks ago but as an act of courtesy to the petitioners had withheld the report at the latter's request. He said that a new plan had been drawn but the committee had voted as before and were waiting to hear again from the petitioners. In reply to a question by Alderman Heathcote, Judge Allen, the petitioners' attorney, replied that his clients did not want the garage without the filling station. When the board came back again after the recess the committee's report of a tie vote of three to three was presented. The entire committee was in favor of the garage but could not agree on the filling station. Alderman Ball asked if the two aldermen from Ward 3 who were not members of the committee would state their opinions. Alderman Weeks said that he saw no real reason why the station should not be granted and Alderman Baker agreed with him. Alderman Lloyd then presented the case of the opponents of the station and felt that the committee should consistently stick to its policy of turning down outside filling stations on the main thoroughfares. He said that if the permit were granted what argument could be given the petitioners who had been turned down and that if the permit was granted the ghosts of a thousand petitions would rise up and point their finger at us and want to know why they were sent to an untimely death.

Alderman Heathcote then cited the Fletcher case on Brook street and asked why three stations should be granted on a narrow street where one can not get within forty feet of the tank. He said that the board should have a progressive policy and squarely meet the issue plainly and squarely. Alderman Lally felt that a filling station at this point would be a great asset and that if Alderman Crosby had been present the vote would have been 4 to 3 as he was known to be favorable to the project. He also said he was glad that the vote was a tie as that put the entire question up to the board as a whole. Alderman Gallagher said that the question should be upon the public necessity for a station at the vicinity. Alderman Lloyd replied:

TAFEE-McCARTHY

The wedding of Mr. Raymond W. Taffee, one of the most popular officers in the Newton Police department and Miss Florence Marie McCarthy of West Newton, took place Monday morning at St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. William T. O'Brien, at nine o'clock, in the presence of a large number of friends of the bride couple, including Mayor Edwin O. Childs, Street Commissioner George E. Stuart, City Treasurer Francis Newhall and other city officers and members of the Police department.

The bride was gowned in an Elizabethan crepe dress, her tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and lilies of the valley, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Mabel C. McCarthy was her sole attendant and was in jade green satin with black velvet picture hat, shoes and stockings to match and carried a bouquet of roses.

Mr. Taffee had Mr. Ernest Furneau as his best man and the ushers were Messrs. Leo Taffee, a brother of the groom, and Charles McCarthy, a brother of the bride.

The musical program included organ selections by Mr. John Henley and the singing of "Ave Maria" and "O Salutaris" by Mr. John Joyce, tenor.

A wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride on Warren avenue, West Newton, and which was attractively decorated in pink and blue.

The groom's gift to the bride was a white gold wrist watch, his best man received green gold cuff links and the bridesmaid was presented with a white gold onyx ring.

After a wedding trip to Atlantic city and Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Taffee will reside on Albemarle road, where they will be at home after September 25th.

The groom is a veteran of the Mexican border and the World's war and has been a member of the police department for the past five years. He is a member of Newton Lodge of Elks and has served as president of the Newton Police Relief Association.

could be obtained.) Particular stress was from the first laid on the Johnston & Murphy line and the demand for these shoes grew so rapidly that on April last the Esart Company decided to devote its entire attention to selling shoes of this one make, sacrificing the business it had built up in its other lines.

The wisdom of this decision is apparent since the business has kept on growing at a pace that has now made it necessary to open the second store.

RED CROSS SWEATER KNITTERS

The Newton Chapter has received its quota from the National Headquarters of the Red Cross, and every Red Cross Member who is willing to knit one or more sweaters is asked to send her name and address to Mrs. George M. Angier, 25 Pine Ridge road, Waban, Massachusetts, as soon as possible.

The necessary wool and knitting instructions will be sent to every knitter, through the branch Chairman, as soon as the supplies are received.

There are 30,000 sweaters needed by men still in hospitals of the United States. The solidarity and effectiveness of the entire Red Cross organization will be enlisted in the sweater campaign. Every member of the Red Cross who joins the army of workers to make the campaign a success will know that each sweater turned out will go to a disabled veteran who actually needs it. There is to be no mass distribution. Only those men who have neither sweaters nor money to pay for them will be the recipients.

The Newton Chapter has always answered every call.

GEORGE M. ANGIER, Chairman.
Newton Chapter.

STATEMENT NOT AUTHORIZED

Editor Newton Graphic:

In an issue of a Boston paper dated Aug. 27, 1925, statements were made regarding the wage increase asked for by Newton City Employees Local No. 175.

this point and that he believed that there was a real demand. Alderman Ball suggested that the granting of the filling station be contingent upon the construction of the garage although he made it clear that he wished to cast no reflection upon the petitioners. Alderman Lloyd then disclaimed responsibility for three stations on Brook street, saying that one of them had been there sixteen years, long before he became connected with the city government. Alderman Parker said that if the committee had erred in the number of permits granted in the last two years that they should accept the criticisms and watch more closely in the future. He said that the "outside filling station was the dog that wagged the tail of the garage." In larger cities he claimed that the gasoline pumps were all located inside of the building and there was no reason why an outside filling station should be granted in Newton. He urged the board to follow the policy of the committee in consistently turning such petitions down. Alderman Weeks classified the pumps into three sections, sidewalk pumps, which are out of the question, garages with inside tanks, and garages with outside filling stations. All of them he said were confined to the business district and "who are we to say a man shall not do business in a legitimate way." As far as the public safety was concerned Mr. Weeks could not see any reason for concern. Judge Allen, the petitioners' attorney, stated that his clients considered the matter as one project and that they were entirely willing to have the permits for filling station contingent upon the construction of the garage within a certain time. He said that it was unreasonable to suppose that Mr. Gibson, not having ever been in the business as an auto salesman or repairman, intended to manage the entire three projects but that he intended to get someone to manage these and share the profits. Alderman Hinckley felt that the filling station was needful in that automobilists were becoming educated to the need of changing oil every 500 miles and that free crank service was a great facility. Alderman Ball asked Judge Allen if a time limit of one year for the construction of the garage would be acceptable to which the attorney replied that it would. City Solicitor Bartlett, in reply to President White's question as to the legality of such a procedure, replied that he did not think such a course could be enforced. Alderman Parker then questioned Judge Allen as to whether it had been thought that the filling station might be turned over to an oil company. The reply was that it was the intention of the petitioners to control the entire business. Alderman Baker moved that the garage be granted, the discussion having gone on for three quarters of an hour and on a voice vote the filling station was granted.

One hundred and thirty-five hearings, a record number in the history of the city, confronted the board when the meeting came to order at 7.45. Considerable interest was manifested in several of the petitions for public garages in various parts of the city and the auditorium seats were practically all occupied by proponents and opponents of the different projects.

Several hearings on pole locations for the Edison and Telephone Companies were held. Alderman O'Connell presented a letter of protest from an auditor for a location on Hawthorn street. Ex-alderman Arthur Kendrick opposed four poles on Hunnewell avenue.

John E. Crowley of Newton Centre spoke in behalf of his petition for a change of zone from single to general residence district of his property on Commonwealth avenue near Read court. James L. Beck and L. Berman opposed the petition. Alderman Norman F. Pratt presented six letters of protest.

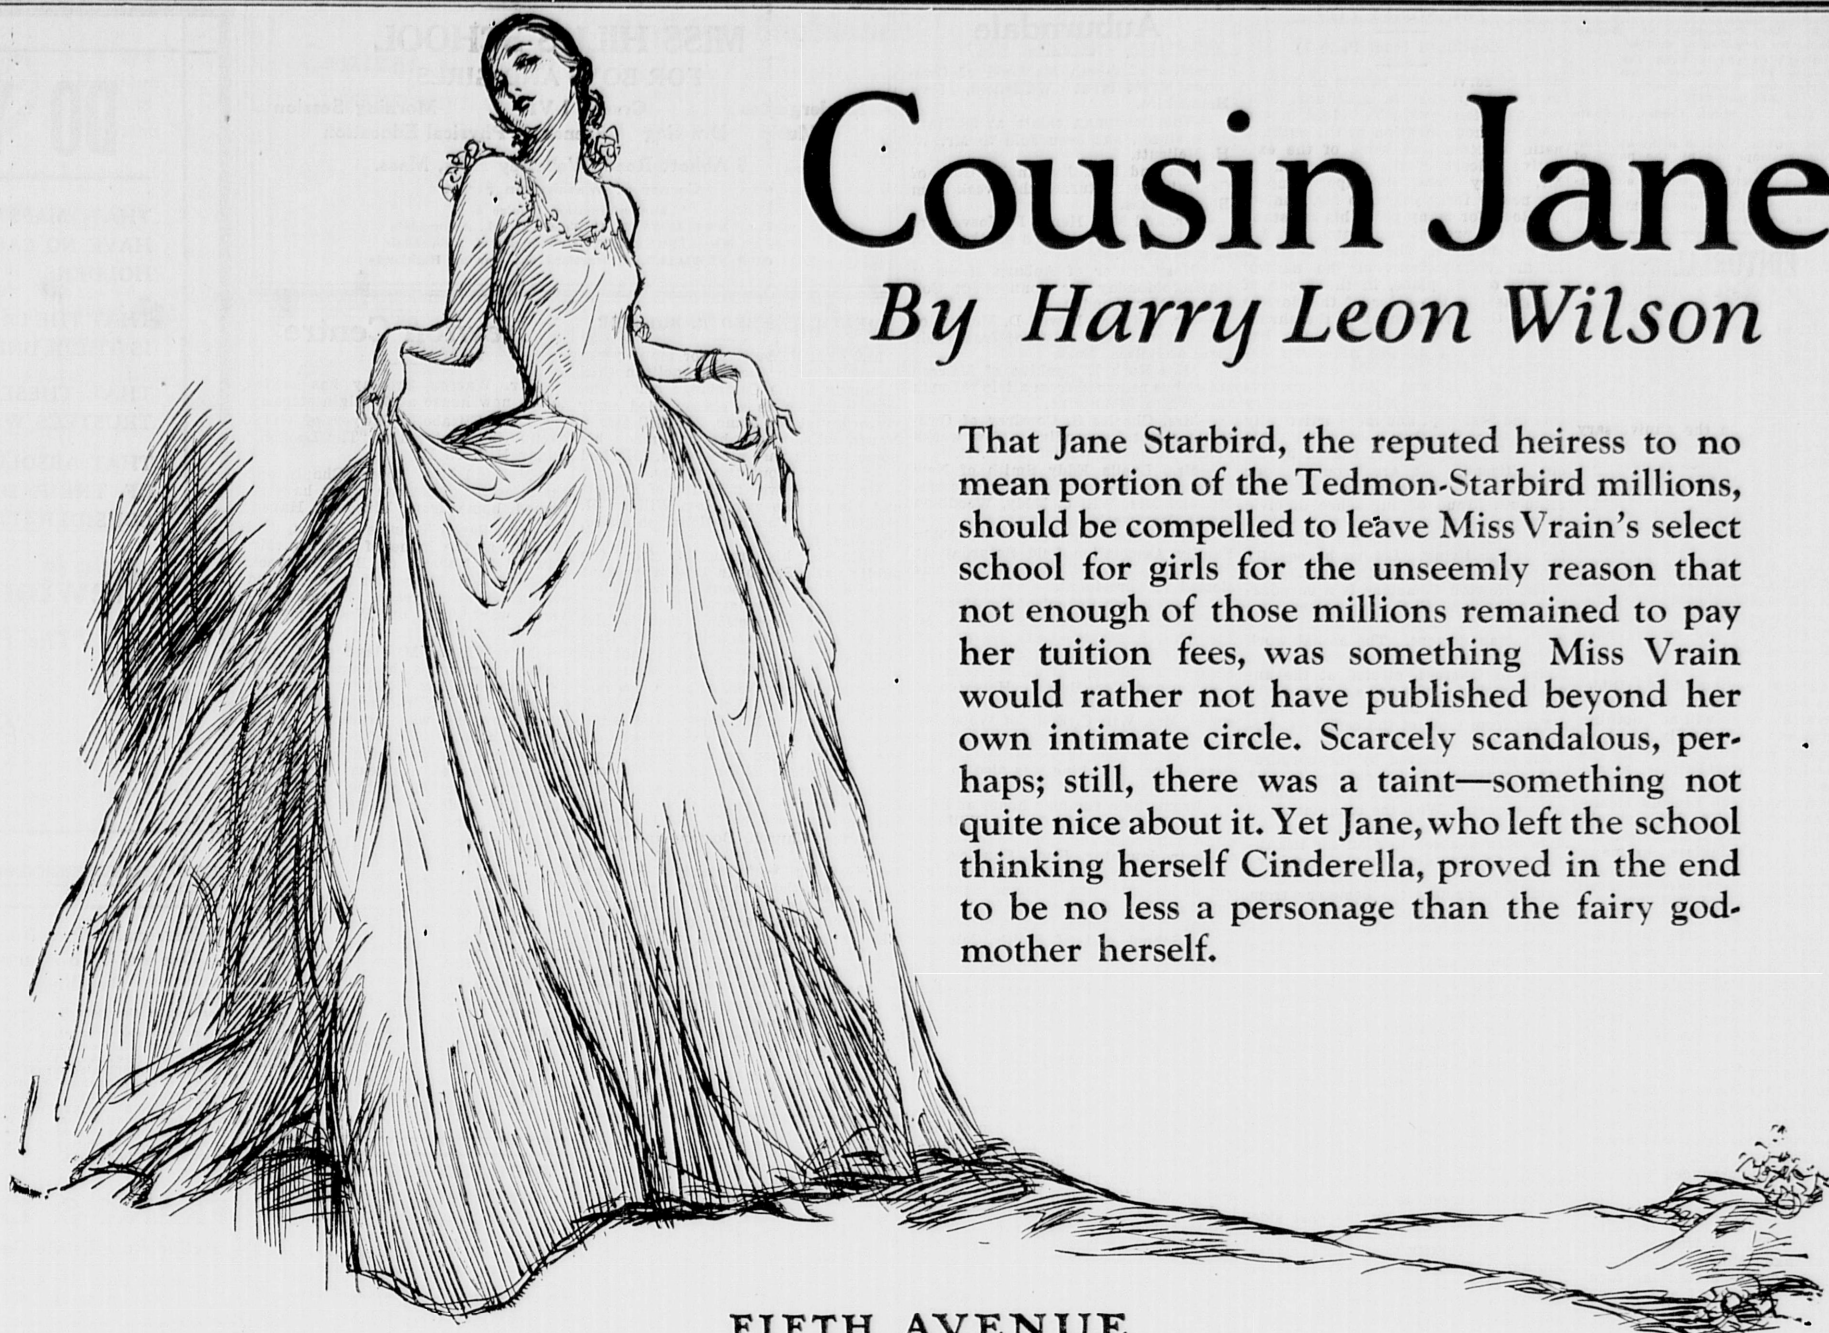

Henry L. Whittlesey of Chestnut street, West Newton, opposed the petition of Fred M. Blaine et al for change of land on Austin street from general residence to single residence zone. He had bought the land at the corner of Chestnut and Austin streets because it was unrestricted and he denounced zoning as "confiscation without compensation" and that it would be found uneconomical in the long run. Continuing he said it was unjust. "A man's house is his castle" and the people would be better satisfied to use their own judgment. Letters of protest were also received from the trustees of the Felton estate.

J. W. Monahan appeared in behalf of Francis J. Coyne on the latter's petition for a waiver of the setback line on Park avenue. Mr. Monahan said that the shape of Mr. Coyne's property was peculiar and if he had to keep back the required distance he would have but seventeen and a half feet in which to erect his house, and the average house was twenty-four feet deep. Mr. Coyne however was an architect and had drawn plans for his house which was for his own home and not for speculative purposes and as only asking for a waiver of a strip from six inches to two and a half feet wide. Dr. Edward Mellus of Cotton street opposed the petition on the grounds that the lot was too small for a house and that the property was bought after the zoning law was passed and that the new owner knew the existing conditions. R. J. Garner, P. Brackett and others opposed the petition.

The petition of Fred H. Gunn for a permit to alter a single house into a public house at 51 Hyde avenue, Newton Highlands, aroused considerable opposition from residents of the vicinity. Speaking in behalf of his petition Mr. Gunn said that he wished to remodel the present dilapidated structure and live in one half and rent the other. H. H. Skelton, A. H. Taber, S. Dennie and H. W. Colby spoke in opposition. Several letters of protest were read by the clerk.

Miss M. F. Mahoney was given leave to withdraw her petition for a waiver of setback line at 312 Linwood avenue, Newtonville.

No objections were voiced to the petitions of the Ferguson and Company, etc., for a permit to sell additional gasoline at their station on Lexington street, Auburndale.

Cousin Jane

By Harry Leon Wilson

That Jane Starbird, the reputed heiress to no mean portion of the Tedmon-Starbird millions, should be compelled to leave Miss Vrain's select school for girls for the unseemly reason that not enough of those millions remained to pay her tuition fees, was something Miss Vrain would rather not have published beyond her own intimate circle. Scarcely scandalous, perhaps; still, there was a taint—something not quite nice about it. Yet Jane, who left the school thinking herself Cinderella, proved in the end to be no less a personage than the fairy god-mother herself.

The petition of the McLucas Brothers for a filling station at the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Woodbine street aroused considerable opposition among the residents of the vicinity. Judge Thomas Weston, representing the McLucas Brothers, said that the two present sidewalk pumps would be removed and an up-to-date filling station erected according to the proposed plans with the grounds fitted up with grass plots, shrubs, etc. He also said that it was not the intention of the petitioners to sell out to the Standard Oil Company as had been rumored. The Judge spoke of the congestion at the location at present due to the sidewalk pumps. He also presented the names of six of the neighboring property owners who were unopposed. Miss Edna Moir of Woodbine street, speaking in opposition said that many near accidents have occurred at that corner and that a filling station there would endanger the lives of the public as well as the many children who lived in the vicinity. She also said that Mr. McLucas had admitted that the Standard Oil Company would install the pumps at its own expense. In regard to the community improvements which have been made on Ash street, Miss Moir spoke of the Burr School, K. of C. Club, and the new Memorial Library and that the residents of Auburndale did not want this filling station to spoil them. She presented a petition with twenty signatures of residents who were opposed. Her mother, Mrs. Anna B. Moir, said that the city would be giving away 612 feet of sidewalk to the petitioners if the filling station was granted them. Mr. McLucas had told her that the garage business was a failure there and that if they got the filling station they would improve the grounds as shown on the plans "if the grass would grow" which she intimated was doubtful. After she intimated Mrs. Moir said that she could go on for hours and hours giving objections but that she knew the aldermen had a lot to do and she would cut her talk short. Mr. Will C. Eddy presented his semi-annual greetings to the board and said that they were called to city hall about every six months about this same property. He went on to say "if we want anything in Auburndale we have to fight for it" and that in view of the fact that the residents of his section were erecting a $35,000 Library and that they paid the same taxes as everybody else they felt that they were entitled to something in return. Mrs. Howe stated that her consent to the filling station was conditional and that she would prefer an attractive filling station to houses whose back doors would be directly across Woodbine street from her front door. In response to a question from President White who said "I assume that you also pay taxes Mrs. Howe," she replied, "I pay taxes in proportion,

Mr. President." Mr. John W. Ross, whom Judge Weston had stated was quoted as unopposed, stated that he wished to go on record as opposed to the project whereupon Judge Weston rose to beg Mr. Ross' pardon. Miss Edna Moir then rose to speak for one of the young gentlemen of the vicinity whom she believed was not present. When discovery was made that he was in the gallery she said that she would let him speak for himself whereupon he announced that he was "in favor of all she said." The committee on Franchises and Licenses took the matter under consideration.

Attorney William V. Hayden appeared in behalf of the Motor Conditioning Company for permit to use the 13-car stall garages in the rear of 749 Beacon street, Newton Centre, as a repair shop. Objection was made by Mr. F. H. Williams who was afraid the resulting noise would be a nuisance. Mr. Hayden then informed Mr.

Williams that the company's business hours were from 8 to 6 and that they were not open Sundays or holidays. Charles F. Bacon spoke in opposition to the petition of Horace W. Orr for a filling station at 322 Washington street, Newton, and the clerk read a letter of protest from Elmer Parkhurst. No one appeared for the petitioner. John J. Quirk appeared in behalf of his petition for a 10-car stall garage at the rear of 5 Cook street and for an additional amount of gasoline at his station at 320 Watertown street, both of Nonantum. Mr. Quirk said that if he obtained the permit for the garage he would do away with the present sidewalk pump. The petition was opposed by John Finelli, representing Pasquale Leona, who stated that there was very little room to make the alterations as proposed and that the district was the most congested of any in the city. Attorney Hugh Boyd, representing the Metropolitan Filling Stations, Inc., appeared in behalf of the latter for a drive-in station at the corner of Washington and Court streets, Newtonville. Mr. Boyd stated that the property could only be used for two purposes, stores and garage, and that a building would obstruct the view at the corner whereas a drive-in station would not. He also said that the Metropolitan Filling Station, Inc., were controlled by Mr. Hall and his father-in-law Mr. Arthur Wright, who runs the bakery in Nonantum Square. No objection was manifested at the hearing.

The Library department was granted a permit to build a three-car garage in the rear of the Library in Newton. This matter has been under consideration by the Board for several months. Alderman Gallagher was the only dissenting vote.

One hundred and four hearings were held on private garages for not more

The efforts of the Better Schools League Inc. of Chicago to arouse public sentiment to the value of education as a method of preventing crime should have the warmest support of every good citizen and the League does well to give publicity to this important subject on the anniversary of the framing and signing of the Constitution of the United States. Attention is specially called to the following sentence in the trumpet call issued by the League: "There can be no liberty without law. If we are to become more of a law-abiding nation we will first, recognize the necessity of having our educational institutions organized as training camps for citizenship and second, make provision that our young people come under their influence."

The non-stop reading of the Bible, which has been featured in the Boston newspapers this week will add nothing of reverence and undoubtedly has lessened respect which the man in the street has for the world's most sacred literature. It is as much out of place as a jazz dance in the Lincoln Memorial at Washington. The Bible should be read with reverence and understanding, not in a meaningless, so many pages a minute style, as this non-stop stunt revealed. Let us have no more of this kind of so-called "religion."

The Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company has made a most liberal offer to the city in the matter of rebuilding the present antiquated fire and police signal systems of Newton. It should be immediately accepted and work promptly begun on what is a most needed improvement.

We regret to announce that Miss Dorothy Drake, who has been our capable assistant for the past seven years, has resigned. She will devote herself to dramatic work, and one of her plays will be produced this fall in Newton.

dard of service, the people of Newton owe a deep debt of gratitude. But our chronicle would be indeed incomplete, without mention of the enthusiastic devotion and work of the executive officers of the corporation, to Mr. Henry Ross, its superintendent for nearly forty years, to Mr. Charles W. Ross, for many years his assistant, and to the present superintendent, Mr. H. Wilson Ross. Their work is shown in the enhancement of the natural beauty of the place, in the green of the grass, in the color of the flowers and in the arrangement of the shrubbery and foliage. Their work has been inspected by the American Association of Cemetery Superintendents, and it was their unanimous opinion that the Newton Cemetery was the best kept and most artistically arranged of any they had visited. This professional opinion is shared by all our citizens. We are proud of our beautiful city, proud of our city government, proud of our sense of civic duty, proud of our schools, proud in fact of all those essentials which refer to the living. Let us be equally proud of our care for the dead.

The Newton Cemetery is a corporation in which all the lot owners are stockholders, and have an equal share in its management. The actual work is in the hands of the president and board of trustees, elected at the annual meeting. It is not a money-making corporation, and in that respect differs from most of the cemetery corporations in the country.

All profits received by the corporation are utilized in improvements, and this is really the secret of its tremendous success. With the elimination of all desire for dividends, the trustees have been enabled to plan for the future on the broadest lines. They have purchased large areas of land in their vicinity to protect the cemetery from proximity to inferior dwellings. They have urged important civic improvements, and are now at work securing the widening of Walnut street in front of the cemetery — an improvement which everyone admits is necessary and important.

They have established funds for perpetual care of lots and for perpetual renewals of monuments and stone work, and are constantly seeking for the best method and finest results.

In the last few years, the Corporation has made a sweeping change for the better by removing all the service buildings and greenhouses from the cemetery grounds on the west side of Walnut street, to property owned by the Corporation on the east side of the street. This change makes it possible to beautify the Walnut street frontage of the cemetery. In addition several acres of land in the western portion of the cemetery have been graded for lot purposes. These improvements have cost about $100,000.

The present board of officers includes Hon. William F. Bacon, President, William H. Rice, vice president, H. Wilson Ross, secretary and treasurer, auditor, George W. Auryans, and these trustees, George M. Angier, William F. Bacon, James E. Clark, Henry B. Day, George M. Fliske, Frank J. Hale, Hon. Seward W. Jones, William H. Rice and H. Wilson Ross.

NEWTON VS. QUINCY

The Newton High School football team will open its season tomorrow afternoon on Cladfield field, Newtonville, at 3 P. M., when it faces Quincy High. The opening game of the season is one of interest for football fans and a fair sized gathering is looked for in support of the home team which has prospects of giving the other teams in the Suburban League a good run for the championship. While Newton always has a team that knows football, due to the efforts of Coach Dickinson, it is still early to make predictions as to the chances of the local team, but at any rate the fans are assured of a good game as the Granite City lads are usually good early season opponents.

Church. This church is chosen because it is the most central spot for the district. The courses for the first term of this year include the following: Life of Christ, Old Testament Survey, Principles of Teaching, Intermediate Department Methods, Senior Department Methods, Story Telling, Handwork in Religious Education, and Primary Department Methods.

Miss Lillian Barker, Executive Secretary, reported on plans for the coming year, stating that the policy of the Executive Committee is to continue and improve the past activities, such as the Community School, Young People's Conference, promotion of Father and Son Week, and of Mother and Daughter Week. Survey of organized classes, two sub-district short-term institutes of teacher-training, etc.

The finance committee, Mr. R. O. Walter chairman, made its report, showing the need for a fair distribution of the expenses and for the operation of churches in getting the District work into their church budgets. The meeting adjourned at 9:30 p. m. with appropriate prayer offered by Rev. F. D. Taylor.

IMMANUEL BAPTIST CHURCH

The alterations and improvements that are being going on at Immanuel Baptist Church during the summer have been completed and services were held on Sunday for the first time since the middle of June. Every part of the building has been refinished and decorated. In the auditorium the original color scheme with terra cotta base has been retained and the furnishings of green, include new carpet, new cushions and pulpit upholstery. A new system of electric lighting has been installed throughout. On the first floor the wall finish is of light buff, adding greatly to the warmth and attractiveness of the rooms there. The kitchen has been much enlarged and provided with the most modern equipment. Other features of furnishing and convenience have been added.

In the plans for the year, music and Religious Education have a large place. Mr. Gustafson returns as Pastor's Assistant and under his direction the Chorus Choir will resume its work October first. The Bible School meets for its first session at noon on Sunday, with Rally Day the Sunday following.

DEATH OF FRED R. BOLSTER

Newton Centre

Mr. Fred R. Bolster, for many years identified with the Metropolitan Coal Company at its Cambridge office, and widely known as a singer, died early yesterday at his home, 251 Mill street, Newtonville, where he had made his home for the past nine years. He had been ill for about two weeks.

Mr. Bolster was a native of Everett and his parents were Rev. William H. Bolster, a Congregational minister, and Mrs. Bolster.

Following his graduation from the public Latin School in Boston he went into business and about the same time began to give close attention to music. His earlier connections were soloist at St. James Episcopal Church, Roxbury, and as a member of the quartet in a Dorchester Congregational Church. Fifteen years ago he became a member of the choir of the Church of the Advent at Mt. Vernon and Brimmer streets and was soon chosen as bass soloist, becoming one of the most valued members of the choir. He was especially capable as a precentor. Mr. Bolster was the precentor at the Service-Recital given by Marcel Dupre at Immanuel Church, Boston, under the auspices of the N. E. Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, in Jan. 1923, when the choirs of Emmanuel Trinity Churches and the Church of the Advent participated in the service.

He is survived by his widow, who was Miss May Goodwin of Dorchester in which section of the city he resided before moving to Newtonville; and two children, Marjorie and Eleanor.

Mr. Bolster was a member of Lafayette Lodge of Masons.

Did you ever stop to think that most of your troubles are your own fault?

AUBURNDALE ALIVE

The Methodist Young Men's Club of Centenary M. E. Church, Auburndale, will hold its first regular business meeting on Thursday evening, Sept. 24th, in the parish house of the church. The officers for the coming year: President, Alastair Fraser; vice president, Fred Van Wormer; secretary, Donald Wilson; treasurer, Milton Hall, have, with the various committee chairmen, already done much work toward insuring a successful year.

Shower baths will be installed in the parish house at a cost of several hundred dollars and as usual, a crack-jack basketball team will be put in the field. The athletic committee, headed by Kenneth Bourne, is planning to put a Junior team on the floor this winter. A coach and director for the club will be engaged within the next two weeks.

The President has offered two silver cups to be put in competition among the members of the club, one for proficiency in athletics and the other for the member who displays the best all-around ability. Gold basketballs and letters will also be awarded at the end of the year.

Any church teams desirous of securing games should communicate with Kenneth Bourne, 12 Newland street, Auburndale, chairman of athletics, or with the president, Alastair Fraser, 58 Washburn avenue, Auburndale. Games both at home and away are desired.

DEATH OF REV. MR. BLACKETT

Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley Blackett, one of the best known clergymen in the Methodist denomination in New England, died on Tuesday at his home on Jefferson street, Newton, after a long period of failing health.

Born in Sydney, N. S., 66 years ago, Dr. Blackett came to the United States with his parents, who made their home in Chelsea. He was educated in the public schools there, later attending Boston University, from which he was graduated in 1888. Two years later he completed his theology studies at Boston University.

His first church service was at St. Luke's Church in Lynn, where he was stationed for a few months in 1892. Within a short time, however, he was appointed pastor of the M. E. Church in Natick and subsequently held pastorates at Everett, Winthrop, Peabody, Lynn, Malden, Winchester, Dorchester and Cambridge, where he was pastor of Grace Church, after which he became agent for the board of stewards of the Conference. During the past five years Dr. Blackett had been instrumental in raising a half a million dollars for the permanent fund for the benefit of retired ministers in the New England Conference.

He is survived by his widow and four children, Dr. Charles W. Blackett, Jr., of Newton, Olin W. Blackett, professor at the University of Michigan, and Sydney W. Blackett and George H. Blackett, the latter two of this city.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. Dr. Joseph M. Shepler, a close friend and associate of Dr. Blackett, will conduct the services.

HUNNEWELL CLUB

The officers of the Hunnewell Club have plans underway for an active season. Particular attention is to be given those features of the club's entertainment that proved so popular last year. There is to be a series of "smokers" which will make a direct appeal to all who enjoy "member's nights." The Sunday afternoon concerts, which last season were so successful, will be among the principal events of the coming year. These and other equally delightful entertainments have already been arranged.

During the Summer much work has been done in the matter of painting and redecorating the interior of the clubhouse. A new system of lighting for the large hall is to be installed shortly. Other improvements are contemplated that will add to the attractiveness of the clubhouse.

NEW ASSISTANT MINISTER AT GRACE CHURCH

On Sunday next, Sept. 20th, the Rev. Raymond Lang will begin his duties as Assistant Minister at Grace Church. He is to assist the Rev. Dr. MacLure in the work of the parish, especially in work for the younger people and in the church school.

Rev. Mr. Lang is a graduate of Harvard College and of the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge. For one year he was curate at Calvary Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., and has had charge of Epiphany Church, Dorchester, for a year during the absence in Europe of the rector. Mr. Lang is married and his wife has an M.A. degree from Boston University. They have one small child—a boy.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER

Leverett D. G. Bentley

New street signs have been gradually appearing among us and will continue to do so, we assume, until each thoroughfare has its proper designation. To us they seem to meet the requirements, which is all that is asked, of course. Whether they will achieve a reputation for beauty of design we are not prepared to say.

For our own part we prefer simplicity and if these new signs will stand the ravages of severe weather they will be preferable to the old ones. The sign that is now passing out, gold letters on a background of black, seemed to possess dignity but whether their lasting qualities were such as to commend them we do not know. Efficiency and economy are the magic words these days and taxpayers may rightfully expect that any move on the part of the city is made in the direction of a lower tax rate. We recall that some of the old signs had the number of the ward in which they were located. Just what value this was we were never able to learn. A pedestrian or a driver in searching for a house would scarcely be expected to be interested in the ward or even the precinct. On voting days perhaps it would be well that the ward numbers and precinct designations be posted for there are those who will say "I'm not sure where the precinct I live in but I think I know the number of the ward".

However, such signs could serve the people only on primary and election days and are not to be considered, in our opinion. We do feel that a sign that told the section or village would be an advantage. Just how that could be worked out we are not prepared to say. Many of our readers will recall that more than once they have been stopped on the street by a stranger with the query "What part of Newton is this?" Newton Centre or Newtonville? When the reply is made, "Newton," there is often a sharp look given, as much as to say, "Are you trying to have fun with me?" But a prompt explanation will make the situation clear and most of us endeavor to be courteous under such circumstances. It must be puzzling to strangers to tell the different villages. Then again they may be eager to find a resident of this city and possibly seek to locate him as soon as possible. Would it not be a great help to the strangers and citizens as well if at certain points there were signs to tell just what village it was? We abhor those roadside billboards so common these days that say something like this—"You are now in Jayburg. Welcome!" or

"You are leaving Squashville. Come again!" That kind of a sign would not appeal for it is usually as ugly as it is ridiculous. We firmly believe that serviceable and dignified signs that would help travelers in Newton might well be put in various parts of the city without great cost. What do you think about it?

"Did you have a pleasant journey?"
Asked the suitcase of the grip.
"Not so bad, although I must say I was knocked-out by the trip".

"What was wrong?" pursued the suitcase.
"Did they bang you 'round a lot?"
Came the answer, "You have guessed it."
And the train was awful hot".

"I was lucky, I saw Europe",
Said the suitcase with some pride.
"Though I think I like the U. S." Far more than the other side."

"Well, to me it makes no difference",
And the grip then gave a sigh,
"I can't get fond of excitement, Though in every way I try".

"Just what happened?" asked the suitcase.
"Something bad, that I am sure,
For last year you came back happy
And declared you yearned for more".

Spoke the grip, "Yes, there's a reason,
It's a good one you will see,
I was laid up till a porter
Let a big trunk fall on me".

The subject of uniformed closing hours for stores appears to have given great concern of mind to our esteemed North Side contemporary. We regret that the seriousness of this matter had not come to our attention before as we would have been willing to offer some of our most profound thoughts in the hope of solving what appears to be a vexatious problem. However, so much has been already said that we are content of our inability to add anything illuminating. Therefore we will refrain from participation in this discussion despite the fact we always enjoy a chance to "horn in". Would our readers look upon it as inappropriate if we were to dwell upon the extension of this closing-hour proposition to other things, say, for instance the home? What would happen if closing-hours on the ice-box were established? Would not that prevent a midnight raid by the young folks upon their parents' refrigerator? Some considerable food would be saved and there would be no embarrassment in the kitchen next morning over the fact that certain dishes that were to be served at luncheon or dinner had disappeared during the night. Yes, by all means, let us have closing hours on the ice-box. Now the next suggestion we would offer has to do with the candy that father sometimes brings home or that sister's "best friend" shows up with regularly. "If there was a strict understanding that this box could be opened only at stated hours of the day we would believe that the distribution would be fairer and that a certain party would not be permitted to gorge himself without interference. In a household where dwell two men of relatively the same size around the neck there should most certainly be closing hours established on the linen drawer. Then each would have his own shirts and collars, unless by common consent a swap were allowed. The same rule might be applied to women members of the family as far as our limited knowledge goes, but we hesitate to make a definite statement and merely submit the idea. Take it on the matter of telephone conversations. Would not closing hours be appreciated by party-line subscribers? We are sure they would if applied to "sweeties" who tie-up the whole works while exchanging sweet nothings over the wire. Here then is what we believe a splendid chance to extend the scope of this closing-hour movement. We will set the example by closing this particular paragraph.

The valiant effort of our friend the South Side editor to arouse public interest in the selection of a candidate for Mayor is indeed heartening in view of our own eagerness to see the "political pot" boiling. We are impressed with his sense of civic duty but we lament the fact that he has seen fit to make it a matter of money. That he should make a monetary inducement seems a trifle unusual and not like him. Now it happens that we have for many years enjoyed his friendship and although our acquaintance on the South Side is by no means limited we know of no one over there whom we respect more than this editor. In fact we should be much disturbed if he did not look with indulgence upon our reference to him at this time, for we greatly value his esteem. And yet we cannot refrain from speaking of this most unusual procedure—the presentation of a $1 to the reader who suggests a candidate for mayor. In Boston, where candidates for Mayor are bobbing up daily, he would find himself busy signing checks. We do not understand there is any objection to a man nominating himself, but such a rule would have to be laid down if the editor started any such enterprise in Boston. In Newton it seems far less rash. We have already commented in this column on the retiring disposition of Newton's possible candidates for Mayor and their reluctance to talk. Maybe our editorial friend has an idea he can arouse them by getting their names into print by way of the United States Mint. If so, it seems a dollar well invested, at least from his point of view. At the same time it offers the practical politician an opportunity for a maximum of publicity at a minimum of cost. A man who is cautious and who wants to feel his way in the political game could get a friend to send his name in and watch the result on the public conscience—we assume, of course, that the public has a conscience. This would be a prospective candidate's way of securing nomination, if he were willing to avail himself of this method. In other words it would resolve itself into that well known system—a dollar down and the rest in easy payments.

Well, how does the old place look? Has it changed much or don't you find it just about as you left it? These queries we respectfully address to our fellow citizens who have returned home again from a Summer spent elsewhere than in Newton. It must feel good to get back and it cannot fail to thrill one to see the familiar scenes once more. Still there are those to whom "home-coming stuff" brings little or no joy. We refer to those who are sent for hurriedly for various reasons. Take for instance the man who is summoned to turn-on the water. We know that his date-book has had every page full for sometime. He has been using-up enough gasoline to make the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen sit up and take notice. Then there is the telephone man. How he revels in the thought that he is again to connect lines that have been disconnected for many weeks. Next the electric light man. Another case of a "whirl of the town" for him and his associates. There are others who must answer the call in order that we all may be established again for the Winter for these are all necessities and as the saying goes, "We just can't get along without them." Our experience has been that a little tact and considerable patience is of great value under these circumstances and that the best way to reward those who see to it that this or that service is resumed is to thank them for their efforts. We are sure they will like to see us return—but not in bunnies.

GLEASON—SANBORN
The wedding of Miss Ruth Esther Sanborn, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Sanborn and Mr. Robert Arthur Gleason of Newton Lower Falls, took place last Saturday at the home of the bride's parents at 120 Court Street, Newtonville.

New England — a Neighborhood

Signal your own central from any telephone this Company operates.

Place by number, with your local operator, your order for any other telephone we serve.

We will undertake to connect you with that telephone (or, failing that, to give you a report), not quite with the swiftness of local service, but with an average speed that warrants your holding the line.

This goes for any one of more-than-a-million telephones—from Lake Champlain to Cape Cod, from the Penobscot to the Berkshires, from Winnepesaukee to Narragansett Bay.

Call your operator. Give her the number. Hold the line.

We call it "Neighborhood Toll Service" because it makes New England a neighborhood.

It is our latest contribution to the social, industrial and commercial unity of New England—to which nothing is more nearly essential than Communication, swift and sure.

Hood's Grade Milk

Will appeal to the Children
They will like its fine flavor

If you happen to be one of the mothers who say, "I can't get the children to drink enough milk," we ask you to try Hood's Grade "A" Milk. You will be delighted at the eagerness with which they will drain the glass. No longer will the "time for your milk" be met with indifference or protest. The regular glass of milk will be a pleasant anticipation and the milk habit so firmly established that the greatest of diet problems is definitely solved.

This finer, richer milk is produced in accordance with the NEW Massachusetts regulations for Grade "A" Milk and is the finest large supply of family milk produced in New England. It is safeguarded and checked by our own veterinarians and inspectors and those of your health authorities as well.

THE SILENT CITY

Third and Last of A Series of Articles on the Newton Cemetery

"The place of death is no longer in our eyes, a place of gloom, desertion and sorrow, at the bare idea of which we shudder with horror and dismay. It is an agreeable resting place to which we retire at the close of life, still to be visited and gazed on and cared for by those we hold dear."

The above quotation from some unknown author, aptly describes Newton Cemetery. It is very doubtful, if all our citizens are aware of the natural beauty and loveliness of the one hundred and fifteen acres, in the very heart of the city, which compose the Newton Cemetery.

Over seventy years ago, our forefathers realizing that the existing church and burial grounds should soon become inadequate for the needs of the town, formed the Newton Cemetery Corporation, the exact date being April 5, 1855. About thirty acres of years the town clerk, were prime movers in the matter and the first board of trustees was composed of Rev. Barnas Sears, president, J. S. Clark, Seth Davis, Rev. Jonathan E. Woodbridge, John D. Towle, Mr. Rice and Dr. Bigelow. Joseph W. Plimpton was clerk and Joseph N. Bacon was treasurer. Rev. Mr. Sears resigned as president in November, 1855, and Dr. Bigelow succeeded him serving until his death in 1866.

In 1856 Walnut street was laid out south of Homer street and the main entrance planned for that street, but it was not until 1869 at the suggestion of Mr. Warren P. Tyler, that the present beautiful gateway, was designed by Mr. George F. Meacham, the architect, and erected at a cost of $4,500.

The cemetery was consecrated June 10, 1857, after passing thru a trying financial experience. The exercises

ROTARY CLUB

State Senator Abbott B. Rice was the guest and speaker at the Monday luncheon this week of the Newton Rotary Club. Mr. Rice, who has just returned from a three months' trip in Europe, gave a most interesting and instructive talk on his experiences abroad. With his son, Lawrence B. Rice, the well known tennis expert, he attended the tennis matches at Wimbledon, where he said there was an attendance of nearly 200,000 people during the week of play. He commented on the cheap taxi service in Paris, saying one could ride clear across the city for about 15 cents in American money. He found France reluctant to tax its people, and said they were appealing to tourists to visit their country. He spent a day on the battlefields, and told of the devastation at Rheims, where the cathedral was the only building not injured or destroyed during the war.

Mr. Rice told of the wonderful canal system in Sweden, where a boat can be taken clear across the country by means of 57 locks.

He was particularly interested in the matter of establishing a free port for Boston, and examined with considerable interest the facilities and arrangements at Hamburg, the greatest free port in the world.

Mr. Rice was so interesting that the usual time for adjournment was ignored.

The next meeting of the club will be at the new Ford building in Newtonville, where the members will be the guests of President Ira S. Roe.

CHANGE OF NAME

The Newton Motor Car Company which has been located in Cole's Block, Newton for the past six months has enlarged its business by establishing a branch at 703 Main street, Waltham, and in consequence has changed its name to that of the Suburban Motor Car Co.

In addition to Waltham, and all of the Newtons, the territory covered by the company also includes Watertown, Waverley, Lincoln, and Weston.

MARRIED

On September 12th, in Green Bay, Wisconsin, at Christ Episcopal Church, by Rev. Mager McMurray, Miss Virginia Gittens of De Pere, Wis., to Austin Choate Eaton of Auburndale, Mass.

COMMUNITY MUSIC

Francis Allen Wheeler, music specialist of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, who comes to West Newton on September 28, 29 and 30, under the auspices of the West Newton Community Centre, has been staging large musical celebrations and teaching community singing in many cities of the states for the past six years. The talks he will give in the Davis School Auditorium, West Newton, are looked forward to with great interest as it is hoped to stimulate more enthusiasm for community music in all the Newtons.

Mr. Wheeler will broadcast from W. B. Z. (Boston studio) on Sunday. He will lead the Newton Rotary Club in community singing at their luncheon on Monday. On Wednesday morning the senior grades of the Petrus School are to meet Mr. Wheeler for an hour. Wednesday evening has been reserved for the colored group of West Newton, when it is the wish to have all turn out for a worth while community sing.

Invitations have been sent to organizations, churches, music clubs, Scout and other group leaders, but all persons interested in promoting community music are invited to attend the course, the subjects of which are: Monday, September 28 at 8 P. M., "The History and Development of Community Music"; Tuesday, September 29 at 8 P. M., "Musical Needs in America"; Tuesday, September 29 at 8 P. M., "What Newton Can Do."

For further particulars apply to Hattie Mae Austin, Director of West Newton Community Centre, Davis School, Phone W. N. 2260.

FIREMAN HONORED

Assistant Fire Chief George K. Stacy, who has just retired from the Newton Fire Department on account of the age limit, was presented with a suitably inscribed gold badge on Tuesday evening, the gift of his colleagues in the department.

The presentation was made by Mayor Childs in his usual fluent manner, at the West Newton Fire station in the presence of as many members of the department who were able to attend.

Mr. Stacy entered the department as a call man in 1885 and became a permanent member in 1890.

NEW QUARTERS

The formal opening of the new building of the Newton Motor Sales Company, at 765 Washington street, Newtonville, is announced for tomorrow afternoon and evening. The general public is cordially invited to visit the new show and salesrooms, modern repair shop, service station, and garage, all housed in one of the largest and most modern structures in this vicinity devoted exclusively to the display and sale of automobiles, and to the rendering of service to owners. Not only Ford owners have awaited the opening of the new building with much interest, but it also promises to be an event of more than ordinary significance to automobilists in general through the new tire and accessory department for all makes of cars, and the new policy adopted by the company in regard to meeting price competition on all lines of tires and accessories throughout Greater Boston.

The new building is admirably located on Washington street, opposite the Newtonville railroad station, in the heart of the Newtons and conveniently situated for the serving of Ford owners throughout the city, as well as for the display and sale of new cars. The former location at 1250 Washington street, West Newton, will be retained for the present and customers in that section who find it more convenient may continue to secure service at that place. The attractions and advantages of the new building, however, are unusual in many ways—and with its central location—this promises to soon become one of the busiest centres of Ford sales and service activities in Greater Boston.

Beginning four years ago, with a contract for 144 Ford cars in the first season, the business of the Newton Motor Sales Company has steadily increased until its contract for the present season is an even one thousand cars. The new building—with its unusual accommodations and facilities—is necessary to meet this rapid expansion as well as prompted by a desire to render more complete service to customers.

Fronting on Washington street, the new structure is 72 feet in width and extends 140 feet to the rear. With large and commodious sub-basement extending under the entire building this provides more than 20,000 square feet of floor space to be devoted exclusively to display, sales, storage, and service for Ford cars. The building is of modern fire-proof construction throughout, and equipped with a modern sprinkler system. The front is of fancy brick and plate glass and is especially artistic in its appearance. The large plate glass windows on either side of the main entrance are unusual even in the automotive field, the dimensions of each opening being 24 by 14 feet and the largest in which the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has ever set glass in this vicinity.

The main display and salesroom extends across the entire front of the building, with ample space for the display of all Ford models and sales activities. At the right are located the mahogany and glass executive offices, while at the left are the Ford parts and general accessory departments. These are admirably equipped with steel and glass display counters, and with almost innumerable shelves and bins for carrying an adequate supply of all Ford parts at all times.

A mezzanine floor is conveniently located above the accessory department. This provides ample space for the storage and display of a large stock of the heavier equipment and accessories with racks and other fixtures to assist in the conservation of space and the convenient arrangement of the large stock.

The polished steel and glass fixtures, mahogany and glass office partitions, tile floor, artistic lighting fixtures, and spacious windows, all contribute to make the reception and sales room an unusual setting for the display of automobiles.

The repair shop and service station in the rear has a depth of approximately 100 feet and extends across the entire width of the structure. Ample light and entrance facilities are provided while the large sub-basement includes storage space for twenty-five or more new cars, as well as ample space for other cars and equipment. The building is equipped with two heating systems, a steam heating system for the shops and garage, and a modern Ballard Oil Heating plant for the offices and salesroom.

An interesting announcement in connection with the opening of the new building is the addition of a new department which will carry several lines of tires and all types of accessories for all makes of cars. Of still more interest, however, is the announcement of the new price policy of the company in that it guarantees to meet the lowest Boston prices on all standard automotive equipment and accessories, including tires. This is, in effect, a guarantee that prices cannot be bettered anywhere in Greater Boston. In the event that any article can be bought for a less price, the difference will be refunded.

The new building will be open evenings, and offer many other conveniences to patrons which were not possible in the former location.

THE WEEK IN NEWTON SPORTS

Edited by WARREN K. BRIMBLECOM

NEWTON 12-QUINCY 0

Newton's superior use of the forward pass enabled it to gain a 12-0 victory over Quincy High, which outweighed the local lads about fifteen pounds per man, last Saturday afternoon before one of the largest field crowds ever experienced on Clafin field. More than three thousand witnessed the game.

Newton's first score came in the first period when Captain Tom Gilligan intercepted a forward pass and ran forty yards for a touchdown. Spain's attempt at goal was blocked. Quincy, with a veteran line, outrushed the local team all through the game, but only once threatened to score. This was in the third period when after a beautiful march for over half the field the Newton line held, and Newton took possession of the ball on its thirteen-yard line. Here the quarter ended with Newton apparently preparing to kick. On resuming play Newton surprised Quincy when, instead of kicking, Frank Spain, standing behind his goal, tossed a pretty forward to Hemeon, Newton right end, which placed the ball nearly in mid-field. An end run gained nine yards and a rush through the line made first down. Gilligan slipped around Quincy's left end for thirty yards. Spain's attempt at a field goal failed. Quincy put the ball in play on its twenty-yard line and signalled a forward pass. The line broke and the Quincy back was dropped in his tracks. The tackle caused him to fumble and Hemeon recovered on the two-yard line. Proctor went over for the second touchdown on a play outside of left tackle. Spain's attempt at goal was again blocked.

McCullough and Hemeon, ends, Littlefield, guard, Andres, center, Spain, Proctor, and Capt. Gilligan in the backfield played brilliantly for Newton while Anderson, MacLean, Hebert, and Captain Lindholm, Quincy linemen, and Grannal, fullback, played best for the Granite City team. Score by periods:

	1	2	3	4	Total
Newton	6	0	0	6	12
Quincy	0	0	0	0	0

Touchdowns, made by Gilligan, Proctor. Referee, Newhall Babcock. Umpire, A. J. Woodcock. Linesman, Edgar Burkhardt. Time, four 8m periods.

PALS WIN TWO

On Saturday afternoon, Sept. 19th,

at Victory Field, Newton, the Newton Pals shut out the Newton Y. M. C. A. by a score of 3 to 0. "Jake" Passe hurled air-tight ball for the Pals and allowed but two hits while he struck out 15 men. He was accorded excellent support by his teammates, who played errorless ball behind him. Both Butler and Lyman in the infield turned in some pretty plays while J. Lyman in the outfield made a few fine catches of hard hit drives.

On Sunday afternoon, Sept. 20th, at Boston Common, the Newton Pals, brought to a close, a very successful season, by a 25 to 4 victory over the St. Joseph's T. A. S. of the West End. Bob Schlieparka hurled for the Pals and made an easy job of it as the St. Josephs could not solve his offerings. This victory brought to a close one of the most successful seasons that the Newton Pals club has enjoyed as their record for the season was 23 wins and 7 defeats, a very fine showing when one considers the strong teams played by the Pals.

Y. M. C. A.

The bowling season opened at the Newton Y. M. C. A. on Monday, September 21st. A meeting for all bowlers was held on Tuesday, September 22nd. The following committee was chosen for the new year: F. H. Tucker, chairman, Walter Cooper, Fred Trowbridge, Theodore Morton, Louis Bills, and Jack Ward.

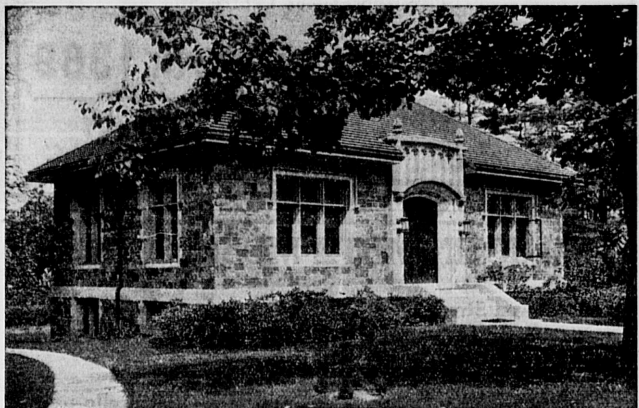

Beginning Thursday, September 24th, the gymnasium will be closed for a few days while repairs are made and everything put in first class shape for the season which opens on the 5th of October.

The Physical Department Committee of which Mr. C. V. Moore is Chairman, met on Tuesday evening with Mr. Richard B. Simmons to consider the policy of the Physical Department for the year 1925-1926. Other members of the committee are: J. S. Irving, E. G. Wilson, and President F. D. Fuller ex officio.

On Thursday evening the Newton Association entertained the immigrants at the Immigration Station at East Boston. Moving pictures were shown.

THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

land were first purchased with an entrance thru what is now known as Cemetery avenue, off Homer street, the present Walnut street being unconstructed at that time. A portion of land purchased was owned by the father of the late Rev. James Freeman Clarke, and on it was an old morocco factory owned by him. The name of Grove Hill Cemetery was first selected when the project was suggested but changed to its present name when the corporation was organized. Dr. Henry Bigelow, for whom the Bigelow School was named, and one of the most influential men of the town, and Marshall S. Rice, for many included an historical address by Dr. Bigelow, original hymns by Mr. S. Jemison, Jr., and Rev. Samuel F. Smith, and an address by Rev. Mr. Huntington of Cambridge.

The Soldiers' monument was authorized by the town in 1863 and the total expense of about $5,200 was partially raised by 1,100 school children who gave a dime apiece and popular subscriptions of $1.00 each, by which about $1,200 was raised. The monument is a shaft of Quincy granite, 28 feet in height and was dedicated July 23, 1864. It was the second Soldiers' monument to be erected. (Continued on Page 4)

Too Many Have Wrong Theory of Happiness

Happiness was not the direct object of a stole's life. There is no rule of life contained in the precept that a man should pursue his own happiness. Many men think that they are seeking happiness when they are only seeking the gratification of some particular passion, the strongest that they have, was the contention of Marcus Aurelius. The end of a man is, as already explained, to live conformably to nature, and he will thus obtain happiness, tranquillity of mind and contentment. As a means of living conformably to nature he must study the four chief virtues, each of which has its proper sphere: wisdom, or the knowledge of good and evil; justice, or the giving to every man his due; fortitude, or the enduring of labor and pain, and temperance, which is moderation in all things. By thus living conformably to nature the stole obtained all that he wished or expected. His reward was in his virtuous life, and he was satisfied with that. Some Greek poet long ago wrote:

For virtue only of all human things
Takes her reward not from the rewards
of others.
Virtue herself rewards the toils of virtue.

Musician Makes Plea for Melodic Glossary

Reverting to the elementary aspect of the question, I believe that if one were to collect as many as possible of the melodies which have given the greatest happiness to the greatest numbers, it would be feasible to compile from them a glossary of melodic terms such as would insure a melodic result with the same audience under almost any conditions, writes Ewin Evans in the Margin of Music. Then one might take the melodies which have given as much happiness to a more restricted circle, and add a list of terms the use of which was to be recommended only when the presence of that audience could be counted upon.

The composer who travels beyond these accepted glossaries will always be pronounced unmelodious until the new aural habits have taken root. So far as the best "advanced" music is concerned, it is melodious to those who know it intimately, and whose ear is capable of acquiring new habits, and it is unmelodious to those who either do not know it or do not want their habits disturbed.

Aborigines' Tobacco

Australian bushmen show great discrimination in their smoking and are adept at "curing" wild tobacco. The leaves of this plant resemble those of tobacco plants, but are smaller. The leaf gives off a nicotine oil, is pleasant to the taste, and burns well. After the leaf is gathered it is allowed to wilt but not dry. In the fermentation process damp sacks are thrown over the leaves in a warm and shady place for about a week. Then follows the drying in some airy place until the leaf shows a leathery texture. The midribs and stalks are now removed and the leaf is arranged in layers and sprinkled with heated treacle, rum, and, if possible, a little saltpetre. The whole is then packed in a box and pressed until the curing is complete.

Gave Up Reform Idea

St. Michael is honored by various orders of chivalry, among them one founded by Louis XI. of France, which bore the name of the Order of the Cockle. It derived its name from the cockle shells which ornamented the robes of the knight. A partly religious institution connected with the saint was the Society of Fools, founded at Cleves in 1381. Its amiable object was to prevent the rising generation from adopting bad habits. Knights of the order wore on their mantles an emblem of a fool, his cap and bells. The title of the society suggests that members well realized that to attempt reforming boys and girls was a fool's errand.

Other Side of the Ledger

Jones was sent by his employer, a bookmaker, to collect a betting debt from Smith, who was notorious for his slackness in settling accounts.

After listening to several excuses Jones remarked, "Well, at least let me know on what date I may expect payment."

Smith replied: "Do you take me for a prophet?"

"No," responded Jones. "Up to the present I have always regarded you as a loss!"

Where Days Are Short

North cape, at the extreme north of Norway, is within the Arctic circle, and at that point the sun does not rise for two months in midwinter—that is to say, there is continuous night from November 20 to January 23. On these two days the sun barely shows its upper edge above the horizon. Sunset almost immediately follows sunrise, and these therefore are the shortest days at North cape.

Bess—He will be; if there's any cooking done he'll have to do it.—Boston Transcript.

Too Much Attention

Title He Gave Himself Stuck to Great Showman

Probably the greatest showman the world has ever known was Sanger, famous for Sanger's circus. He even went so far as to give himself a title, and the title stuck so firmly that many people thought he really had been elevated to the peerage! Everyone knew him as "Lord" George Sanger.

In his book, "Studio and Stage," Mr. Joseph Harker, the famous scene painter, tells how this "title" came about. It was the outcome of a deal in horses with William Cody, otherwise known as Buffalo Bill. According to Sanger, Cody thought himself by far the more important showman. In the course of the preliminary to the deal, Bill sent a representative to Sanger with a message to the effect that "The Honorable William F. Cody" refused to take a penny less than so much for the horses.

Sanger, who had the gift of giving neat replies, and who also was not going to be outdone, without more ado sent back this terse message:

"If you see the Hon. W. F. Cody, then, he's Lord George Sanger—and I won't give a hapenny more than I stipulated for the horses."

And from that day on "Lord" George Sanger he remained.

Elephant Noted for Keen Sense of Smell

What the elephant lacks in vision is more than compensated for by the animal's keen sense of smell. His trunk is probably the best smelling apparatus in the world, and he depends first of all on his sense of smell.

When he is at all suspicious he moves his trunk round in every direction, so that the slightest taint in the air will reach him. In many other ways the elephant's trunk is the most extraordinary part of that most extraordinary animal, the Providence Journal says.

It is entirely flexible at every point and it can turn in any direction and has tremendous strength. There is no bone in it, but it is constructed of interwoven muscles and sinew so tough that you can scarcely cut it with a knife.

From it an elephant can shoot a stream of water that will put out a fire, and with it he can lift a tree trunk weighing a ton or pull a delicate blade of grass. He drinks with it, feeds himself with it, smells with it, works with it and fights with it.

Relations to Nature

In general one may say that the human mind is the oldest and most universal profession, and that, where a man does not yet discover in himself any fitness for one work more than another, this may be preferred. But the doctrine of the farm is merely this, that every man ought to stand in primary relations with the work of the world; out to do it himself, and not to suffer the accident of his having a purse in his pocket, or his having been bred to some dishonest and injurious craft, to sever him from those duties; and for this reason, that labor is God's education; that he only is a sincere learner, he only can become a master, who learns the secrets of labor, and who by real cunning extracts from Nature its scepter.—Emerson.

"Little Bird Told Me."

In early days superstitious people paid considerable attention to the birds and their different cries, which were believed to foretell events. Thus comes the old saying, "A little bird told me," says the London Daily Mail.

Traces of this belief are to be found in our own Old Testament, where verse 20 of chapter 10 of Ecclesiastes speaks of "for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter." It is generally agreed that it is from this belief in the universal knowledge of birds—which, of course, are supposed to see everything from the sky—that we get this saying.

Clergyman Harness Maker

An Anglican clergyman, Rev. Canon Charles Griffiths of Bristol, England, was the proprietor of a prosperous manufacturing business in the East end of London, the publication of his will discloses, the New York Times says. The business, the manufacture of harness for tradesmen's horses, was established in 1750, and was left to the canon by the will of a relative 12 years ago. The canon is said to have been a generous employer, and the business grew to large proportions under his supervision.

A Family Tract

A woman engaged a new maid, with whose appearance and manner she was greatly pleased. When the terms had been agreed upon the mistress said: "Now, my last maid was much too friendly with the policeman. I hope I can trust you?"

"Indeed you can, madam," she replied. "I can't bear policemen. I was brought up to hate the very sight of them. You see, my father was a burglar."

Water Inside Crystal

Oliver Farrington, curator of the Field museum in Chicago, brought from South America a piece of crystal quartz containing a small amount of perfectly clear water which can be seen plainly inside the crystal. According to geologists, this water may have been in this crystal for 10,000,000 or 100,000,000 years. The crystal belongs to the Archean age which existed hundreds of millions of years ago.

BRISTOL-MALLEY

One of the notable fall weddings in this city was that of Miss Ruth Esther Malley, the daughter of Major and Mrs. Charles A. Malley of Chestnut Hill and Mr. Clark Bill Bristol of Brookline.

It took place last Saturday evening at Trinity Church, Newton Centre, and the ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, the rector of the church. ## RADIO ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE PUBLIC

IT has come to the attention of the undersigned companies that a considerable number of persons are using poles carrying their current for the support of radio antennae.

The public undoubtedly do not realize the hazards of this practice due to the danger of the antennae carrying currents of electricity to the persons making such attachments, to passersby on the streets and also into homes. The practice is condemned by the National Electrical Safety Code Committee and by the authorities having supervision of wires in cities and towns.

The companies, therefore, have reluctantly come to the conclusion that the practice must be stopped and desire to give notice that all such attachments must be removed within ten days.

This rule is promulgated only in the interest of safety and we trust that the public will appreciate its reasonableness and cooperate in its enforcement.

NEWTON CHORAL SOCIETY

The executive committee of the society met Tuesday evening at the home of the president, Mr. Hardington, on Dale street, Newtonville. Nearly all the members were present and much enthusiasm was shown relative to the coming season. It was decided that the first rehearsal will take place Tuesday evening, October 13. The first concert of the season will take place Thursday evening, December 17. Rehearsals will be held this fall at Central Church, Newtonville, as usual.

Plans were made for a drive for new active and associate members. As some members move out of town each year and some have engagements that prevent their attending, it is necessary to secure a good many new singers each year. A committee of about 20 was appointed to take charge of this drive, and letters are being sent to each member asking them all to co-operate in this effort.

There was some discussion of the possibility of securing additional financial backing from generous music lovers who should be willing to contribute more than the regular $5.00 fee for associate membership. The most successful societies of this type usually have a group of generous friends who are willing to contribute liberally in this way to promote the cause of music. The Newton Choral Society has done such excellent work in providing a fine type of music for our home city, that it would be very appropriate if some of our music lovers, without being solicited, would come forward and offer such generous assistance.

EDITORIAL

In the growing public interest in the possibility of a contest for the office of mayor this fall, let us not overlook the importance of selecting the right candidates for the office of aldermen. All of the present board who desire to do so should be returned for further service, as experience in that body is a valuable asset. For the vacancies which may occur, we trust the various local civic organizations and women's clubs will present well qualified candidates, preferably persons who have to be urged to accept the office. In this connection, it might be well for the women to urge the nomination of one of that sex; at least it is well worth consideration.

The tax payers of Newton have been fortunate in having a safe and sane board of aldermen during the long administration of Mayor Childs and if the Mayor is to be returned for another two years, that policy should be continued.

It is too bad that something cannot be done to prevent the solicitation for automobile rides by the students on their way home from the Newton High Schools, Washington street, Newtonville, is alive with both boys and girls standing in the roadway and asking passing motorists for a ride, and calling them names if their requests are ignored.

With the coming Sunday standard time is resumed and daylight saving time ceases for the next seven months. We believe there is a constantly growing favorable opinion that daylight saving is a real boon to persons confined in stores and factories, and will greatly help in improving the public health.

With this issue we are pleased to announce a local sports column. Managers of athletic teams throughout the city are requested to get in touch with the sports editor, who will accept notices of all kinds of athletic events which take place in the city or in which Newton boys compete.

The scramble for the majority of Boston will not be a circumstance to what Newton will experience when Mayor Childs decides to retire from that office in this city. Please note that we say "When."

BOY SCOUTS

The troops in the different sections of Newton have started the season with enthusiastic meetings. Boys wishing to enter troops should immediately make application, as from appearances every troop will be filled to its capacity in a very short time.

Friday evening, September 25th, Troop 11 of Newton will hold a meeting for commissioned and non-commissioned officers at 7:45 P. M. at their usual meeting place, Eliot Church. The first regular scoutmeeting of the season will be Friday, October 2nd, at 7:30 P. M.

Monday, October 12th, the cabin built by Troop 11, Newton will be dedicated. Parents and friends are invited to the Ohio on this day, which will be an "Open House" day with a flag raising, etc. Those wishing transportation from Needham Square to the Ohio should notify Mr. Woodbridge, Deputy Commissioner, who is acting as Scoutmaster of troop temporarily.

A Court of Honor will be held in the week commencing October 12th. Scoutmasters will be notified of the exact date soon.

We are glad to welcome back to Scouting, Messrs. Kenneth Merrill as Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop No. 1, Newtonville, and Mr. E. J. Ovington, Assistant Deputy Commissioner. Mr. Merrill is a former Scout and Mr. Ovington has been long identified with Scouting as Scoutmaster, Instructor and Assistant Deputy Commissioner.

SCENT OF MAN IS A DEATH SENTENCEWild Mothers in Captivity Resent Cubs' Hanting.

Lena, the lioness of the zoological gardens in London, is now rearing her second litter of cubs. The secret of success with lion cubs born in captivity seems to lie in this simple rule—no human being must lay a finger on the whelps while they are in their mother's charge. In the past keepers, men of science, and privileged visitors would take a peep at the cubs when the mother had been "fed away" from the nursery. The cuddlesome spotted infants were not moved into the cold air, but who could resist giving them a pat or a caress? asks a writer in the London Chronicle.

Well, that affectionate stroking was their death sentence. It left the dreaded "man scent" on their coats.

For hundreds of thousands of years man has been the arch-enemy of all wild creatures. Some he was obliged to kill off in self-defense and others he hunted for food. It follows that the smell of the destroyer raises an instinctive terror in the mind of an animal.

The tolerance acquired by a captive beast for the smell of man is because the alternative is starvation. The primitive instinct of a nursing mother brings back primitive fears. Therefore, when the lioness returns to the nursery and scents the dreaded taint she either destroys her babies or leaves them to die.

A wolf-mother at the zoo once proved herself unequal to the task of rearing a family. When the next litter arrived the zoo called in a motherly collic. There were four cubs and four puppies.

As an experiment it was decided to leave one cub with the wolf-mother, and, in addition, to give her three of the puppies to see if she would rear them. She was shut out of her dark sleeping box while the change was made and the puppies were given more than an hour to snuggle in the cub's nest of hay and get thoroughly "wolfy" in scene. Then the wolf-mother was readmitted.

There were four sniffs and three snaps—and only the wolf-cub lived.

Another case in point. While the usual keeper of the zoo deer was away a substitute found a baby fawn tottering in an open paddock during bad weather. The man picked it up and carried it into shelter. From that moment the mother refused to go near her baby, and the mite had to be reared by hand.

Even the tame domestic rabbit will kill or abandon her young should the owner handle them in the nest and leave a trace of the fatal "man scent."

Leave all baby animals to their mothers, and do not touch them unless you mean to take them away for good.

School of Fisheries

A school of fisheries to be established at Halifax, Nova Scotia, by W. Henry Robertson, American consul general at Halifax, is described in a late number of School Life. A portion of King's wharf will be transferred to the biological board and a large building remodeled and converted into a school building and biological station.

A staff of scientists will be appointed by the biological board of Canada, and the school will function in co-operation with Dalhousie university and with the Nova Scotia Technical college. A scientific station will be maintained at St. Andrews, New Brunswick.

It is expected that the school will be valuable as an experiment station, providing information and advice for the fishing industry.

His Way

"Old Riley Rezzidew was in here a spell ago, growing about a lost letter," said the landlord of the Petunia tavern.

"Lost another letter he was given to mail, eh?" returned Squire Ramsbottom.

"Yeah! He wasn't certain he had been trying to visit all the places he had been, and was probably going to some he hadn't visited and passing by several he had visited. Somewhere around town he had lost the letter, and the last I knew he hadn't found it. As he conducts all of his business in just about that fashion, he has all the time in the world to denounce the post office for the foolish way they run their business."—Kansas City Star.

Valuable Thermometer

The improved thermometer, known as Doctor Hill's Kata thermometer, is so delicate in its construction that it can measure its own rate of cooling when its temperature approximates that of a human body. The ordinary mercury thermometer is not satisfactory for studying conditions for bodily comfort, and for that reason the bureau of mines is using the Improved Kata thermometer in its study of conditions under which miners have to work.

Sails for Seaplanes

All-metal seaplanes with masts and sails to fly are possibilities of the near future, according to Dr. Wilhelm Rohrbach, who lectured recently before the Royal Society of Arts in London. He emphasized the safety and utility of seaplanes carrying sails, and said this fact might open a new era for naval seaplanes, as it meant they could sail at sea without using gas.

Many Legends About
Scott's Patron Saint

From time immemorial, St. Andrew has been the patron saint of Scotland, to whom November 30 has been dedicated. He first comes to our knowledge through the gospel, which state that he was the brother of Simon Peter, and a son of Jonas, a fisherman of Bethsaida, on the northwestern shore of the Sea of Galilee. He had been a disciple of John the Baptist, but left his former master and attached himself to our Lord, to whom he brought his brother, Simon Peter, says the Springfield Republican.

The traditions about St. Andrew are various. The early Father Eusebius states that he preached in Scythia on the north side of the Black sea. Jerome and Theodoret named Achala, or southern Greece, as the field of his labors after the ascension of our Lord; and he is said to have been crucified at Patras in Achala on a cross in the form of the letter X, known since then as St. Andrew's cross.

Two hundred and eighty years later his bones were removed to Constantinople. About the year 600 they were again exhumed and committed to the care of a pious man named Rule or Regulus, who, after a stormy voyage of a year and a half, was wrecked on the promontory of the Wild Boar on the North sea, now the coast of Fife-shire, Scotland. Out of the wreck Regulus saved the bag containing the bones of St. Andrew.

Regulus was received with gratitude and affection by the people; a piece of ground was given by the king to God and St. Andrew, and the bones were again interred. In a cave in a sandstone cliff hard by Regulus took up his abode, to guard the place where the treasure lay and to preach the gospel of Christ. Through the preaching of the holy man many of the Picts were converted and the little monastery of wicker work or chapel of rude stones gathered from the neighboring beach, which had been built over the place where the bones of the apostle had been laid, became a place of sacred pilgrimage. A little town sprang up close by and received the name of St. Andrew's. The great cathedral of St. Regulus, the ruins of which still dominate the old town, was erected in honor of him who had brought to the place the bones of the apostle, and renowned. In this way St. Andrew became the patron saint of Scotland.

Screen Opera Planned

A new departure in moving-picture production will take place shortly on the leading Paris stage, for M. Rouche, director of the opera, is arranging to show films with a musical accompaniment of special significance. The plan has been under special consideration for a couple of years, but there were objections not easy to overcome, says the St. Paul Dispatch.

For the first opera movie the "Miracle des Loups" is the film selected, for which M. Henri Rabaud of the Institute, director of the Conservatoire of Music and a well-known composer, is furnishing an original musical score. This blending of the oldest and the youngest of the arts naturally will interest both the vast public of the opera and that of the film halls, where the musical program has come to be recognized as of great importance to the effect produced by the pictures.

Darwin's Misfortune

"It was somewhat unlucky for Darwin, but fortunate for the caricaturists," Mr. Furniss writes concerning the great naturalist, "what popular opinion credited him with the theory that man originated from monkeys. He was uncommonly like one himself. His intellectual head in profile bore a remarkable resemblance to the ape—his bushy eyebrows, his deep-set, penetrating eyes, short nose, and his thoughtful wrinkled face. . . . I have heard artists advance the theory that men's faces, expressions, and even the shape of their heads gradually take their expression and form from the subject with which they are mentally engrossed. Yet I only recollect one man mentioned as an illustration of that absurd theory—and he was Darwin.—London Tit-Bits.

"Hold the Fort"

"Hold the Fort," one of the most popular of religious songs, was first sung by its author, Philip Paul Bliss, the "singing evangelist," at a revival meeting presided over by Dwight L. Moody.

The author of this and many other famous devotional songs was born in Pennsylvania. His boyhood was passed on a farm. At the age of nineteen he attended a singing school and was inspired with the ambition to become a composer of songs. He entered a musical college and in 1860 commenced his career as a composer, singer and teacher. Some years later he met Dwight L. Moody, the famous evangelist, and was induced to join the Moody staff. To this work he devoted the remainder of his life and became internationally famous.

Nevada Mountain Sheep

A herd of 70 mountain sheep was discovered recently by F. M. Rapp, a mining engineer, while prospecting in the Silver Peak range in Nevada. While it was known that mountain sheep inhabited this territory it was not believed they were so numerous. Contrary to popular belief, Rapp said they take to sheer cliffs only when danger threatens. At other times they stay on the gentler slopes of the higher mountains. Plans are being made to bring an expert hunter to Nevada to exterminate the cougar, the greatest enemy of the mountain sheep.

The beautiful chapel given by the late John S. Farlow, and endowed with a gift of $10,000 from his children, is a memorial to Dr. Bigelow. It is a heavy Gothic structure with open timber ceiling and terra cotta tiling dado. At the side and opening into the chapel is the conservatory filled with tropical and flowering shrubs artistically arranged in rockeries and flowing water. The chapel contains a tablet in memory of Dr. Bigelow and a bronze memorial of Mr. Farlow. It was dedicated Sept. 26, 1885.

THE B. F. KEITH MONUMENT

A receiving tomb was erected by the town in 1861, but was removed in 1885 to make room for the Memorial chapel, and the present tomb built at the joint expense of the city and cemetery.

The Newton Cemetery was one of the first to require all work by private lot owners to be approved by the superintendent, the rule having been in force since 1859. Perpetual care has been required since 1873 and hedges, iron fences and stone curbing have been barred since 1876. There is only one lot in the cemetery having an iron fence about it, and curiously enough, this lot contains the first interment made in the cemetery.

In addition to the perpetual care which is included in the price of the cemetery lot, a fund has recently been established, called the Perpetual Renewal Fund, which provides for the renewal of monumental work when it becomes broken or decayed. With the

their lives that the Union might be saved, is now generally dedicated to the memory of our loved ones who have gone before. Let all of us, who appreciate the beautiful in nature, who revere the memory of father, or mother, son or daughter, brother or sister, set aside a few hours of that holiday and visit the Newton Cemetery and realize, as every one cannot help but realize, that the people of Newton have, indeed, a princely heritage for those who sleep in the Lord.

"Plant the green sod with the crimson rose,
Let my friends rejoice o'er my calm repose.
Let my memory be like the odors shed,
My hope like the promise of early red.
Let strangers share in their breath and bloom,
Plant ye bright roses over my tomb."

Stray Bits of Wisdom.

Twice does he live who can enjoy the remembrance of the past.—Ovid.

Successful Foes Are Honored by Britain

One cannot recollect any graceful French tribute to Mr. Pitt or Count Von Moltke; Germany still regards Napoleon through the strained eyes of 1813; Italian estimates of Count Radetzky are lamentably deficient in perspective; and even in Spain, so prone to acquiescence, a just appreciation of Bolivar is long overdue.

But successful insurrection or victorious warfare against British armies is an unflattering passport to esteem in England. No calendar of her favorite saints is complete without St. Joan; no catalogue of patriots would evoke a noble British cheer if it omitted a single American, a blameless Boer, and an Irish name or so. Allies are scrutinized with a more dubious eye; but enemies receive almost without distinction, a national tribute.

Perhaps it is an inverted form of vanity; perhaps the national greatness requires the attribution (sometimes on slender grounds) of a corresponding greatness to enemies.

For Washington, British tradition has adopted almost without question the richest embroideries of American myth; and the responsibility for his strange disguise rests solely upon his countrymen. His motives, his simple-minded statesmanship, even his military record have been accepted in England at their face value.

The worst enemies of his just appreciation have been his political heirs, the beneficiaries of that lavish testament of freedom; and the problem, if one enters upon the arduous pursuit of truth, is to disengage the figure of Washington from the impenetrable shadow of the cherry tree. —Phillip Guedalla in Harper's Magazine.

Sunday Driving

They reached the city limits and pulled up at the side of the road opposite the first billboard. The man shut off his engine, lit his pipe and settled back comfortably in his seat, and his wife got out her sewing.

The friend who had been invited for the Sunday drive stood it for about ten minutes and then tapped the husband on the shoulder. "Say, what's the big idea?"

The man laughed and pointed to the billboard.

"We come out here every Sunday, old man, for a couple of hours. No use going any farther than the first billboard, because that's all you'll see, anyway, so we just stay here and take it easy! Saves gas, tires and dust and the strain of keeping from being crowded off the road!"—Judge.

Pitying a Queen

The recent celebration of Queen Wilhelmina's jubilee revives many stories of her youth in Florence, where she lived for a while with her mother. It is related that one day they were going along the Lung Arno, when they were accosted by a beggar.

The queen regent wanted to push on, fearing that her daughter might catch some fearful disease, but the little queen having a will of her own, insisted on stopping. She questioned the man in broken Italian, believing herself quite unknown and on proceeding gave him half a franc.

The beggar looked from the silver in his hand to her, and then back again, and at last said, with an air of impertinence: "So your subjects keep you as short as that! Poor queen!"—London Times.

About Left-Handedness

There is an old tradition that left-handed people are mentally inferior to right-handed people. Dr. Kate Gorday, a Los Angeles psychologist, says this belief was not confirmed by comparative intelligence tests which she gave to a group of over 1,000 children.

The left-handed children did as well in the tests as the others. However, Doctor Gorday came to the conclusion that there is a large percentage of left-handed individuals among subnormal persons. She also found that there are more left-handed boys than girls. It is estimated that between 3 and 4 per cent of the population of this country are left-handed. Whether or not left-handedness is hereditary in some families, as claimed by some authorities, is still a disputed question.—Pathfinder Magazine.

The Way of Childhood

The teacher at the conclusion of a lesson in grammar asked the class in turn to give an example of an abstract noun.

"Manhood," suggested the head of the class, which was duly approved by the teacher, the example being followed by the next two members of the class with "womanhood" and "girlhood," respectively.

The fourth little girl, disdaining anything so obvious as "boyhood," gave as her example "Little Red Riding Hood."—Kansas City Star.

Powerful Car Ferry

A mammoth car ferry for use between Anchorage and Baton Rouge, La., was recently launched at Neville Island, Ohio. This boat will be 340 feet in length, will have an extreme deck width of 91½ feet on a molded beam of 56 feet; and will carry at one trip a complete train of mogul engine and eleven pullman cars or 25 loaded freight cars. The cost will be $250,000, and the ferry will be the largest vessel of its type.

SCHOOL NOTES

F. A. Day Junior High School

In a recent issue of the Boston papers, Dr. M. E. Champion outlined the best system for hot school lunches.

The best example of the ideal school lunch system, Dr. Champion says, is the lunch service operated by the domestic science department in Newton Junior High School. This lunch, which provides for all the children in the school, is operated by the teacher in charge of the domestic science department, and is planned with regard to providing wholesome diet at as low a cost as possible. Children are not allowed to buy desserts unless they order the regular lunch or unless they have brought a lunch from home. It is probably the only school lunch counter in the State where candy and pickles are kept off the counter.

Following is a sample luncheon in the Newton school, providing a well-balanced meal for 20 cents: Asparagus soup, sliced ham and potato, buttered string beans, ice cream, cocoa or milk, bread and butter.

While it is advisable for the schools in the cities to serve a hot lunch during the cold months, it is even more essential in rural schools, Dr. Champion believes. Most of the children carry their lunch to school, he said, in the rural districts, but this lunch is usually cold. For a few cents hot soup or cocoa could be prepared, or an entire menu served at little expense.

The reason the hot lunch is not a more general practice, Dr. Champion thinks, is because the teachers feel it will prove too expensive to maintain and require too much work.

There are people in every community, he points out, members of local women's clubs, or the parent-teacher association, who would be glad to help. It is much better to have the school run the lunch than private interests, it has been found.

The mid-morning lunch, served usually about 10:30, consists of a half pint of milk and a gram of crackers. This costs the children from three to five cents. Where the teacher finds children who are unable to pay for their portion, there is a fund from which these children are taken care of, without publicity. This lunch is now a regular feature in nearly all the schools.

Lasell Seminary

Tuesday evening following a Lasell Faculty Meeting, the teachers from Lasell and Woodland Park School met for a social hour.

Miss Potter, vice-president of Lasell Seminary will talk to the girls on the subject of "Morals and Manners" at four-thirty P. M. on Friday, September 25.

Saturday evening the new girls will again be entertained at a party in the Bragdon "gym."

Dr. Elmer A. Leslie of Boston University will speak at Vespers on Sunday evening, September 27 at 6:15.

The children and teachers of the Woodland Park School enjoyed an all-day picnic at Echo Bridge, Newton, on Saturday, September 19, 1925.

WEST NEWTON MEMORIAL LIBRARY

A large and enthusiastic group of women met on Wednesday morning to plan for Library Week, which is to come the last week of October.

The dance at the Armory, the dinner, the minstrel show, and the book store are among some of the activities planned.

The book shop solicited second hand fiction, and will be glad to call throughout the Newtons to collect. Notify Miss Eleanor Leatherbee, Mt. Vernon street. You will be able not only to buy second hand books, but sample copies of late editions for all the leading publishers of Boston, will be on hand and orders taken for the same for immediate delivery, or for Christmas delivery. And there will be a list of the books soon to come out—these too you may order.

The food sale on Tuesday and the children's entertainments all are of interest. Help to see the foundation of the Library begun!

CITY HALL

Fire Chief Clarence W. Randlett will attend the annual meeting of the International Association of Fire Engineers to be held next week at Louisville, Ky.

Mr. Malcolm Warren of the Buildings Department has returned from a vacation in the White Mountains.

Miss Laura R. Ellis of the Treasurer's office is on a vacation tour of Vermont and the Adirondacks.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER

Leverett D. G. Bentley

The pleasure of a personal acquaintance with George A. Parker, the new Federal Prohibition Administrator for New England, not only makes us eager to write something about his recent appointment but convinces us that we are in a position to tell our readers a few facts concerning him they may not have previously learned. We first came to know Capt. Parker when he assumed command, under Gen. Alfred F. Foote, of the State Police Constabulary. It struck us, as we observed Capt. Parker in command of his men in the field or on State occasions where dress parade was a feature, that he had absolute control of the situation. There is nothing pompous or blustering about him, but he has a tremendous power of reserve. We have seen him issue commands in a direct, sharp manner, but in a tone that was not meant to intimidate his men or impress the public. Rather, he spoke in an almost conversational way. There was no chance of misunderstanding him and his keen eye proved conclusively that he expected his orders to be promptly carried out. We have seen him at the height of excitement incidental to a "big piece of news" such as a K K K disturbance, a fire, the arrival of some distinguished European or the handling of crowds incidental to a large street parade of civil or military forces. Under all these circumstances Capt. Parker has shown himself calm, but with complete mastery of his task. As we first watched him in police work we wondered just why a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, a practicing lawyer and a member of one of the best known families of Massachusetts should be willing to undertake the administration of a police force of 100 or more men. But Capt. Parker's proficiency soon revealed to us that there was a man who had made an exhaustive study of his duties. We soon saw that not only was he handling the police problem scientifically but with a love of performing a public service in the ideal way. There was never a problem too great or a job too difficult for him. The State Police patrol's work has become a source of pride to all citizens, especially those in the rural communities who have reason to be grateful for its existence. All that has been brought about under the firm and never-failing hand of Capt. Parker. But you never heard him bragging or boasting of what he had done. He knew his job and he held it, also his tongue. Now then, there is no doubt but what he will enforce prohibition in this State as it has never been enforced before. There will be no "fooling," no favoritism, no leniency and no laxity under Administrator Parker. You may not read many public statements or promises or threats from him, but you will see results. New England has reason to congratulate itself, in our opinion, and we ask only a comparatively short period of time in which to prove all our contentions.

An extra hour of sleep is coming to us next Sunday. Hooray! Those sixty minutes we lost in April are to be restored to us by law. The funny part of it is we have to accept them whether we want to or not. There are a lot of people who do not believe in daylight saving. Recently we had evidence of an ingenious attempt through the courts to hold State officials accountable for daylight saving and making them responsible for something they should not have done and compelling them to undo it. That matter has not yet been settled. There is no hurry about it, as far as we can see, for with the passing next Sunday of daylight saving we shall have forgotten about it and peace will reign for a while. There is nothing to prevent a discussion of the topic, however. In the cities one is fairly safe in saying, as many times as he chooses and before as many people as will listen, "I think daylight saving is a good thing, don't you?" In the country districts one must remain silent, or at least refrain from expressing such views if he wants to hold the respect of the majority of those about him. It has been our duty, we regret we cannot say privilege, to have listened to public hearings and legislative debates for and against daylight saving. Having heard so much we do not feel that we shall make it a point to attend the session of the Supreme Court when the subject is again to be argued. In fact we have absorbed such an amount of the "pro" and "con" that if a speaker on either side were to hesitate we would be prepared to prompt him. The arguments are numerous and convincing, as presented at least, and no one participating leaves without the satisfaction of knowing that he is on the right side, whichever that may be. Daylight saving, therefore, is one of those matters in which you may confidently believe there is but one way of looking at it, although not all are in agreement as to the "oneness" of the one way.

We hasten to applaud the pollyanna spirit which fills the hearts of some people when they learn that a dozen or more Massachusetts cities are to have a higher tax rate for 1925 than is the city of Newton. In other words, "It might have been worse." Although there is comfort, at least for a time, in viewing the local situation in this manner, it is scarcely as intelligent as might be expected of serious-minded people. There is a tax rate of staggering proportions, due to poor management of municipal funds. The fact that Newton suffers no such calamity is enough to make us as a community highly grateful. We have said before in this column that those Newton people who seem not to appreciate how well things are conducted at City Hall, generally speaking, would do well to pick out for a place of residence certain cities we could name. They would find the City Hall an entirely different place from the ancient structure at West Newton. It would not be merely a place to transact business but a hang-out for all sorts of political puppets—men looking for soft jobs, or perhaps not even jobs but a place on the municipal payroll that will demand no further attention than to accept a pay envelope once a week. Perhaps some of our good Newton people would be shocked were they to know there are such things as padded payrolls and such individuals as those who receive compensation for work they never have or never expect to be called upon to perform. It is nothing short of that "grand and glorious feeling" to be conscious of the cleanliness of city affairs in Newton. This fact, we believe, has been responsible for attracting so many new residents. We have talked with a number of people who have moved here from Boston and from other parts of the Metropolitan district and each has expressed himself as delighted. They have said, with enthusiasm, "We like the way Newton is run." This, although we would not withhold praise from anyone deserving it, is more a tribute to the high standards insisted upon by Newton people themselves than to a single individual or group of individuals. A good many men in public office—we do not say Newton officials—are guided by their administrative by the conscience of the community, only they put it this way: "Our people won't stand for anything that isn't right." As long as Newton is conducted on this policy we shall have nothing to worry about. Rather, we shall be certain that whatever the tax rate we have had a fair run for our money.

One thing we have noticed about this Mayoralty campaign is that the only candidate thus far in the field is not saying so himself but is facing the charge of seeking another term. Quite the opposite condition exists in Boston where each of the nearly-a-score of candidates has proclaimed himself "in the fight to stay." Here in Newton we have the spectacle of a group of voters circulating the nomination papers of their favorite while he makes no direct statement as to his plans. In Boston they are supposed to be past masters of political strategy. Maybe they are, but we think that, whether by accident or otherwise, Newton has an example of strategic accomplishment that is worthy of more than passing notice. We never yet have heard of a candidate who was a candidate, merely by implication and not declaration. Furthermore, it is about as an ingenious a way (again we say we do not know whether it is intentional) of "getting the people to talking." If a man "comes out for Mayor" himself, why that's about all there is to it, but when a man's friends project him into the field and he himself has nothing to say in affirmation or denial—why, see the element of mystery, of suspense, interest and other features of melodrama! To have the people wondering right up to the last minute whether you are a candidate or not is a perfect way of keeping the center of the stage. Furthermore, when a public man is criticized and even condemned and makes no reply to these criticisms and accusations he is making friends—those who believe his enemies are "going a bit too far." Here then is where the "sympathy vote"—one of those indefinable but highly effective bits of strategy—comes in. To continually discuss with disapproval the conduct of a public official is to help him tremendously, at least by indirection.

We wonder if the rationing of anthracite coal in Massachusetts will embarrass many people? We also wonder just how far the use of soft coal as a substitute will extend? And while we are wondering we might as well add, "Will we have a long, warm Autumn and a mild Winter?" Speaking for ourselves, we should prefer to lick the hard coal operators and miners with soft weather rather than soft coal.

NEWTON HOSPITAL

Week ending September 10:—Patients in hospital 115, patients paying as much as cost of care or more 52, patients paying less than cost of care 33, free patients, including babies, 30, babies born 11, patients treated by out patient department 60, accident cases 9, operating room cases 62, social service calls at hospital 5, at homes 6, patients transferred by social service car 2.

All members of the staff are now back on duty. Miss Humphreys, the assistant superintendent, having returned from her vacation on Sunday.

There was a meeting of the Medical and Surgical Staff of the hospital Monday evening.

Among recent visitors to the hospital was Dr. Albert P. Johnson of Sigourney, Iowa, president of the Des Moines Valley Medical Association.

Strange things happen at the hospital. Last Sunday just at the end of the dinner hour an unannounced ambulance drove up to the hospital bringing on Onset and an unconscious man. No one had thought to telephone ahead to the hospital to be ready to receive him, but the journey from Onset had been made because the man before he lapsed into unconsciousness kept repeating over and over again "Newton Hospital." He was taken in at the hospital and it was learned later that he was from one of the neighboring cities, and that he had gone to Onset in apparent good health on Saturday and had been suddenly stricken on Sunday. Everything possible was done for him but his case was a baffling and puzzling one and later in the week he died.

"T and A cases," and there are a number of them treated at the hospital, is the way the physicians and nurses speak of tonsil and adenoid cases.

The flowers used as decorations at the wedding of Miss Dorothy Burnham to Mr. Rodney Eaton of Nyack, N. Y., at Newtonville last Saturday, were sent to the hospital where they served to brighten the wards.

Among the babies born at the hospital recently was a daughter to Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Keever.

Miss Viola Allen, Miss Harriett P. Collins, Miss Zita M. Joyal and Miss Lillian A. Tweedale have completed their time at the hospital.

Among those who have helped the hospital in the making of surgical dressings lately are Miss Anne H. Spain of Waban, Miss Leona G. Miller of Waban, Mrs. Edith W. Lamb of Waban, Miss Lamb of Waban, Mrs. Susan F. Tuttle of Auburndale, Mrs. C. C. Valentine of Auburndale, Mrs. Ernestine Rice of Newtonville, Mrs. Myra E. Cutler of Newtonville, Miss Mary Elder of West Newton, Mrs. T. H. Taft of Wellesley Hills and Mrs. D. W. Morton of Wellesley Hills.

The number of ladies who are helping the hospital in the making of dressings is increasing but help from many more would be welcomed for the number of dressings required is large. Those who are willing to help may set their own day and time for working, and an instructor is ready always to teach the way to make the dressings.

The entering class at the Hospital Nurses' Training School is made up of the Misses Doris E. Aldred of Newtonville, Marjorie M. Baillie of St. John, N. B., Eleanor W. Binney of Milford, Mary E. Brackett of Milton, Crystal O. Bragdon of Ashland, Me., Alice Clapp of Sedgewick, Me., Marjorie M.

NEWTON HOSPITAL

Notice of Annual Meeting
The annual meeting of the Newton Hospital will be held at the Nurses' Home on the Hospital grounds at Newton Lower Falls on Monday, September 28, 1925 at 8 P. M., for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year, and of transacting such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

WILLIAM F. CHASE, Clerk.
Newton, Sept. 15, 1925.

AUCTION BRIDGE LESSONS

Because of the increased interest in Auction Bridge in this country we have secured the exclusive service for this territory of Wynne Ferguson, New York, widely known bridge expert, to write a series of weekly articles under the heading of "Easy Lessons in Auction Bridge." The first one will appear Oct. 9, in the Graphic, and there will be subsequent lessons each week. Mr. Ferguson writes under the nom de plume of Hoyle, Jr.

The series of bridge lessons is one of the big journalistic features to be released this summer, and but one paper in this section has been chosen for the service. In choosing the Graphic, Mr. Ferguson felt that he would be able to reach the greatest number of people in this community.

An added feature to Mr. Ferguson's service will be a "Question and Answer Box" conducted every week by the Graphic. The questions will be answered in the order they are mailed to "Hoyle, Jr." care of this paper.

Mr. Ferguson is making dozens of bridge players grow where none grew before, and he is doing this through pointing out to the public some of the interesting features of the game. Mr. Ferguson's talks are not only pointed and refreshing, but they will go far in helping to standardize the game.

It has truthfully been said that bridge is one of the greatest card games in America and it is growing more popular every day.

It is urged that you enter your subscription to the Graphic immediately so that not one lesson will be missed. The first of the articles will begin October 9, and will continue through thirty-six weeks. Write or call the office, Newton North 0018 or 4354, so that you can be sure of securing the entire series.

SHOOTING PICTURES HERE

Sunday morning, Rowe street, Auburndale, was awakened from its usual placidity by the arrival of a watering-cart followed by several automobiles, carrying part of a motion picture company.

The "Screen Players" are making a two reel comedy entitled "Hold on a Minute" and Rowe street was chosen as the scene of Sunday morning's work, on account of its quietness and also of its nearness to the city stable on Auburndale avenue, where the watering-cart was procured.

Malcolm L. Harvey, who resides on Rowe street, is the leading man of this company, and his neighbors certainly seemed to enjoy his getting wet by the watering-cart and other antics which he was called upon to do.

The players stayed on Rowe street for several hours and consequently all Sunday dinners were delayed and in many cases burned to a crisp.

The "Screen Players," also known as the "Little Screen Players," is made up of amateur and professional actors, actresses and "actresses" under the direction of Herbert F. Lang, a well-known photographer and photographic supervisor for Bachrach, who started several years ago and has since gathered around him many prominent people and actors. The company is non-commercial as yet and all the "shooting" is done on Sundays in and around Boston and at the Atlas studio in Newton Highlands.

A five-reel drama entitled "It" has been completed, will soon be released and may be shown at some of the local theatres.

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

Friends in this district were deeply grieved to learn of the death on Tuesday, September 15, at his home in Boston, of Mr. Frank T. Colby, a former resident of Newton corner. Mr. Colby passed away in his 35th year, after an illness of but a few days.

He was an employee of the Boston Elevated Railway Co. for a number of years, and the love and esteem in which he was held by his associates was fittingly attested by the beautiful floral tributes from officials and employees of the company, and by the large delegation of co-workers who attended his funeral services.

Simple but most impressive funeral services were conducted by Rev. Albert B. Tyler, at the Chapel of Leslie I. Williamson, Allston, Mass., on Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, and were attended by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. Mrs. George Roeder was soloist and very expressively rendered "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide with Me." Following the services the body was taken to Wiscasset, Maine, the early home of Mr. Colby, where funeral services and interment took place Friday afternoon.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Della Colby, Mr. Colby is survived by three children, by his father, of Wiscasset, Maine, by his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Hall, of Wiscasset, and by his brother, Maurice D. Colby, of Waverley, Mass.

GAW-KIMBALL

The wedding of Miss Elinor Robin Kimball, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kimball of Washburn avenue, Auburndale, and Mr. David Douglas Gaw of Evergreen avenue, Auburndale, took place Wednesday evening at the Newton Centre Woman's Club house, Newton Centre, where the ceremony was performed at seven o'clock by Rev. Barnett of Wellesley.

The bridal party included the Misses Adela R. Gaw, Beatrice Gaw and Muriel Kimball, all of Auburndale, Mr. Nathan E. Dewing of Auburndale as best man, and Messrs. Alexander MacKinnon of Auburndale, Henry Anderson of West Newton, Lewis Dodge of Quincy and Elliot Herbert of Wollaston.

CUNNINGHAM-GIRRIOR

The wedding of Mr. Robert L. Cunningham, an overseas veteran, and a resident of River street, West Newton, and Miss Mary Marjorie Girrior took place last week Wednesday at Boston, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. De la Chapelle. The bride who wore mauve charmeuse ensemble trimmed with fur, was accompanied by Miss Dorothy Cunningham as bridesmaid, wearing coral charmeuse. Mr. Cunningham had Mr. Paul J. Girrior of Big Tracade, N. S., as his best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Hotel Essex, Boston, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham left for a wedding trip thru New Hampshire and Canada. On their return they will reside at 22 Ivy street, Boston, where they will be at home after October 15th.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

The use of Hollis street, Newton, as a detour during the resurfacing of the street the past week has resulted in several automobile accidents in the vicinity. Tuesday afternoon a Brockway truck owned by the Soo Lee Laundry Company of Cambridge and operated by Anthony Laflamme of Cambridge was in collision with a taxi owned by the Elmwood Company of Newton and operated by Charles Wacome of Medford at the corner of Centre and Hollis streets. Miss Josephine Berman of Cambridge, a passenger in the taxi, received two cuts on her hand. After treatment by Doctor Stubbs she was taken to her home by the Taxi Company. About five o'clock in the afternoon Gordon S. Pope, eight years old, was coasting in his car on Centre street near Newtonville avenue when the rear of a Ford sedan owned and operated by Leslie Vining of Framingham, Vining took the lead to the left of Dr. Webster nearby. From there he was taken to the hospital where he was treated for a scalp wound and a possible dislocated shoulder. Early in the evening of the same day a Dodge touring car, owned and operated by Alfred M.erson of Saco, Maine, and a Buick owned by Della Dunn and operated by Anna Dunn, both of Cambridge, collided on the narrow curve of Hollis street. Dunn's car was badly damaged. Walter Jenkins and Myra Jenkins of Cook street who were riding in the Dunn's car were injured about the head. Mrs. Mary Dunn another passenger in the Dunn car received a leg. Mrs. Anderson who was riding with her husband suffered an arm fracture.

Wednesday evening a Packard sedan owned and operated by Howard B. Ke of 290 Crafts street was involved when he stepped from behind an automobile on Washington street near Newtonville Square into the path of an automobile operated by Morand Caldwell of Dorchester. At the point where he was taken in the balance it was found that Locke suffered a fractured leg and arm bruises and lacerations. Last Saturday afternoon Paul Inno of Gasbarri avenue was struck by a Buick sedan near St. John street by an auto owned and operated by Philip J. Milea of High street, Newton. Milea took the five o'clock lead to his home where he was attended by Dr. West who took stitches in the boy's forehead.

MINER-CARTER

A notable fall wedding in this city was that of Miss Elizabeth Chase Carter, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Carter of Newtonville and Mr. Robert C. Miner of Wilkes Barre, Penn. The ceremony took place on Wednesday afternoon at the Second Church, West Newton, the Rev. Dr. J. Edgar Park, pastor of the church officiating, the church edifice being decorated with gladioli for the occasion.

The bride was gown in broad satin with veil of tulle and lace and her maid of honor, Miss Martha A. Carter of Newtonville was in lace and chiffon in fall leaf colors, with brown hat. The bridesmaids, the Mrs. Thomas G. Hall, Jr., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Mrs. Marcus Morton, Jr., of Cambridge, were in lace and chiffon but in lighter shades than the gown of the maid of honor.

Mr. Robert Norris of Wilkes Barre, Penn., was the best man and the guests were seated by the following ushers, Messrs. Marcus Morton, Jr., of Cambridge, John Blackman of Wilkes Barre, Penn., John Smith of Philadelphia and David Baker.

A reception at the home of the bride on Highland avenue followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Miner being assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Carter and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Miner, the latter being an uncle and aunt of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Miner will spend their honeymoon in Europe and on their return will reside at Wilkes Barre, Penn., where they will be at home after December 1st.

The bride is a graduate of Vassar and the groom from Princeton.

Yours very truly,
EDWARD T. HARRINGTON CO.

Ingenuity Displayed by Spider Repairing Web

On the porch of a mountain cottage in Pennsylvania a tiny spider was seen to repair her web in a very interesting manner. The web, except for the threads that spread radially from the center, was torn and weatherbeaten; the spokes, so to speak, were intact and tightly stretched. Starting at the center, the spider ran outward along a radial thread, sweeping it clear of the cross threads, breaking them and collecting the fragments until she had a tiny bundle. That she would roll up with her claws and toss out into the air to drop to the ground as waste material. Apparently the gummed points of intersection of threads she softened quickly by fluid from the mouth, for she stripped the spoke perfectly clean. (The observer found later that he could not strip a spoke of cross threads by sliding a split twig along it.)

Returning to the center along the stripped spoke, the spider would free the adjoining spoke, pausing now and then to throw away her tiny ball of waste. Having reduced her web to spokes only, she proceeded to replace the part of the web that she had cleared away, spinning anew the threads that were to stretch from spoke to spoke.

Such a striking example of economy of time, material and labor was a delight to see.—Youth's Companion.

Labor That Calls for Much Physical Effort

A well-known writer once said that oyster dredging on the American coast was the hardest work in the world. The two dredges were wound in by hand, and that everlasting winding, balanced on a swaying deck, was wicked work. The moment one dredge was aboard the oysters had to be "culled," and the whole eight men of the crew were working against time from dawn till dark.

The dock laborer's job is another which entails tremendous physical effort. A steamer's time is money, and when cargo is being discharged not one moment must be wasted by any of those engaged.

The amount of work that can be done in one day is almost incredible. An inquest on a dock laborer who died suddenly on a wharf was held some time ago at which it was stated that on the day of his death he had unloaded no fewer than 36,000 wood paving blocks.

Sight of Cats and Owls

The belief that cats and owls can see in the dark is a popular fallacy. The iris of a cat's eye is capable of great variation, so as to admit more or less light, thus enabling the cat to see much better in the dusk than can humans, but in absolute darkness all animals are as helpless as any human being. The feature which adapts certain eyes for use with only a poor light is the constitution of the retina which is composed of two sets of structures, the so-called rods and cones. The rods are apparently affected by radiation slightly before the cones, and hence some creatures, including owls, whose eyes possess a large proportion of cones, are better suited for seeing in a faint light.

Uncomplimentary

The county inspector was paying his monthly visit to the village school. He examined the children in reading and general knowledge, as was his custom, and was very pleased with the answers he received. After the last question he rose to his feet and, looking slowly around on the upturned faces, remarked genially: "I wish I was a little boy at school again." He allowed a few moments for this to sink in and then added: "Do you know why I wish that?" For a moment or two there was silence, and then a childish voice from the back of the room was heard to say: "Cus you've forgot all you ever knowed."—Atlanta Journal.

Storm Clouds' Visibility

The weather bureau says that the distance at which storm clouds are visible to the naked eye varies greatly with one's position and the kind of clouds. If a person is in an open flat country and the clouds are of the broad stratus or layer type, he may not see them more than 30 or 40 miles away, and even not half so far if the air tends to be misty or hazy. On the other hand, when the air is quite clear a well developed cumulo-nimbus, or thunderstorm, cloud may, in favorable circumstances, be seen when more than 100 miles away.

Australians Know Snow

Snow falls in southeastern Australia during the winter months, and occasionally lies on the ground as far north as Melbourne and Sydney. On the mountains and in northeastern Victoria and southern New South Wales, the snowfall is very heavy. Forests are practically buried in snow and on the plateaus of northeastern Victoria the ground is sometimes covered to the depth of several feet from May to September. This also occurs on the highlands of Tasmania, although there are no mountains bearing perpetual snow-caps in either Australia or Tasmania.

"Out of a prize competition."
"Did you win it?"

TOYS DO MUCH TO SHAPE BOYS' LIVESNo Doubt That Playthings
Have Great Influence.

Have you ever watched parents and fond relatives wandering about aimlessly in the toy department of big stores? They finger this toy and that, worriedly, and finally end by buying something—anything—at the counter that is least crowded.

Such parents lose a great opportunity by neglecting a chance to help their children. A toy is part of a child's education. Just as educators choose textbooks, considering carefully the needs of the child, so should the parent choose toys, writes Ferdinand Strauss, toy manufacturer, in the Popular Science Monthly. For toys should be chosen that will encourage children to think and develop their latent powers.

"America makes toys that teach something, because it has advanced further in the field of child psychology than any other country in the world, and the psychologists have demonstrated that children learn while they play."

"Not long ago I read a story about Orville and Wilbur Wright. When they were little boys in Ohio, their favorite toys were kites and balloons. In playing with them, though, they never dreamed that they would be the men to accomplish through their airplanes the conquest of the air."

"Again and again I find, in reading of the childhood of famous men or in speaking with them, that they spent their play hours with toys that had some definite connection with their later occupation."

"If Lindbergh or Modjeski, the great bridge builders of today, were to tell you of their childhood, you would learn that as boys they spent most of their time making toy bridges."

"Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, United States navy, himself told me that as a boy his principal interest was flying kites."

"Carl E. Akeley, the inventor and big-game hunter, the man who raised taxidermy to the level of the arts, spent his playtime as a boy with tools. The gift of a folding pocket footrule, he says, gave him a big thrill, and with his tools he made toys and useful articles for the house. In the heart of a jungle, hundreds of miles from any source of supplies, a man without ability for construction is almost helpless. Carl Akeley is not, for as a boy he possessed a tool chest."

Checking Up

A stitch in time does not save more than three or four at the most.

He who laughed last laughed worst in 86.14 per cent of the tests made. Where there was smoke there was fire in only 18.93 per cent of the cases examined; in all other cases it was too rich a mixture.

Still waters are not only shallow in nearly every case investigated, but were most easily excited.

In 63 per cent of the tests when a leaper paused to look someone else leaped ahead of him.

Of the burnt children examined the majority were carrying matches and manifested no fear of fire. Of the mice observed 99.75 per cent did not play at all when the cat was away, but went right to work. Some very short lanes were found to have no turning.—Life.

Dogs Mate With Wolves

A story reminiscent of Jack London's "Call of the Wild," has come to the bureau of biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. Last winter a number of wolves, including three black ones, were reported by different stockmen east of Lodgegrass in the Wolf mountains in Montana. A government hunter, assigned to clear them out, trapped an almost black animal that was obviously part dog, and a short time afterward, in the same vicinity, he killed a vicious dog similar to an alreado, probably the sire of the half-blood. It is believed that most of the wolves in this pack are half-breeds.

Too Patriotic

"Mother, make Jane quit singing."
This gentle command came for the second time from upstairs, where Jimmy and Jane were supposed to have been asleep.
"Jimmy, pay no attention to Jane. Be a little man and go to sleep," answered mother.
"I am a man, mother. Jane keeps singing 'Star Spangled Banner,' and every time I have to stand up."—Indianapolis News.

New Building Material

A company has recently been organized to make a new building material similar to concrete but which is really a combination of portland cement and mineralized sawdust. It is claimed to be cheaper, stronger, and in nearly every way better than real concrete. This represents one of the many answers to the problem of saving forest waste and thereby lessening forest destruction.—Nature Magazine.
